EDITORIAL BRIEFS

'JACK the Ripper' gives notice that he will perpetrate another murder this week.

VOTE for the entire Republican county ticket. It is a good one and should receive every Republican vote.

THE famous Brooklyn tabernacle (made famous by the man who preaches in it) was destroyed by fire on Sunday night. The loss is $150,000.

EVERY man on the Republican county ticket deserves your support, and by voting for them the Democratic ring rule which has so long dominated Centre county can be suppressed.

THE remains of Lord Howe, the British General who was shot dead in the battle of Ticonderago, were discovered the other day by men who were digging a sewer in one of of the principal streets of that city.

ROTATION in office is the American plan and when two local candidates for office are before you for your vote be sure to vote for the one who is not a constitutional office-holder—especially if he is a man who is worthy of the office.

Two Ebensburg (Pa.) boys, aged 12 and 14, stole two revolvers, sallied forth at fullfledged highwaymen, stopped two Hungarians and demanded their money, and when they were refused, shot one of the Huns fatally. It is safe to say, without knowing, that dime novels were to blame.

THE Czar of Russia visited the Emperor of Germany last week and the two monarchs had a very pleasant time together. The Czar said that he was confident that W. E. Gray, Esq., will be elected District Attorney and Emperor William said that such a result would suit him immensely.

EXECUTION for murder by means of electricity having been decided as a constitutional mode of vindicating the law in New York, we shall soon have a practical test as to whether electric currents will kill or not. Kemmler, the condemned murderer, will be the first one to meet his death by the new mode of execution.

THE big steamship, City of New York was successfully hauled off the bar on which she had grounded, last Saturday, night, and is now moored at her pier. Her rescue has greatly relieved the minds of the New Yorkers, who were wild over the accident which happened to her. Indeed, it was feared at one time that the magnificent ship would be lost.

HENRY K. BOYER, the Republican candidate for State Treasurer, is making a tour of the State, visiting the different counties and making a favorable impression. As a Speaker of the House of Representatives Mr. Boyer made an enviable reputation and is one of the rising young Republicans of the State. If the Republicans of the State do their full duty they will elect him by an overwhelming majority.

THE next world's fair will be in Chicago. The people of Chicago have, by their indomitable energy, made this certain. The difference in their energy and that of richer New York is great. Chicago already has $7,000,000 and New York has not contributed a cent. Money talks and money is indispensable in world's fairs. Besides, the time is limited and we doubt if enough remains in which to prepare a really creditable exhibition by 1892.

THE NEED OF A NAVY.

There is a surprising disinclination manifested in many quarters to a further increase in the number of armored vessels in our navy. Surprising, in view of the evident need of such ships. We are certainly at peace now with all the nations of the globe, but that we are to remain so is a wholly unwarranted assumption. It is equally opposed to the experience of other countries and to the teachings of our own past history. We have been in existence as an independent nation only a little over one hundred years, yet in that time we have had three severe wars, and have narrowly escaped several others. Every time that we have become involved in war, we have been utterly unprepared, and our losses and expenditures have both been infinitely greater than they ought to have been. The terrible humiliation of the capture of Washington and the destruction of the capital by the British might have been spared us, had we had even a small fleet in the Chesapeake. The blockade of the Southern ports in 1861 might have been made effective from the beginning, and the rebellion crushed at the outset, had we only possessed a few seaworthy vessels. And to-day we should have a navy sufficient to protect our coast cities from a European fleet. It has been conclusively demonstrated that fifteen days after war was declared against us by any naval power, New York, Boston, Philadelphia, Washington, Charleston and the other Atlantic cities would be laid in ruins. Our country is unconquerable now as it has always been, but the brightest jewels of her diadem may be destroyed with impunity by any foreign foe. This is our present situation, and every thoughtful citizen should bestir himself that we may not be found helpless when our enemies attack us.

This danger is by no means so far off as most people seem to think. We do not consider ourselves professional alarmists, but we cannot refrain from recalling to the attention of the peace-loving the war clouds of the last few years. In 1868 we came within an ace of war with France and the imperialists in Mexico. Our possession of a million veteran soldiers, and the troubles of the second empire at home, compelled the ambitious Napoleon to retreat from his untenable position, and we escaped. In 1871 we embroiled ourselves with England over the "Alabama Claims," and had she not shown an unexpected willingness to arbitrate, the blue and the red might again have faced each other on the battlefield. Both France and England were not so well provided with arms, ships and munitions of war as we were, at that time, but as all know, were the same difficulties to arise to-day the odds would be against us, and it is very unlikely that we would find our opponents so conciliatory. In more recent years, the Peruvian difficulties, the Canadian troubles and the Samoan embroglio have seriously disturbed our relations with foreign powers, and have come very near being settled by an appeal to arms. In the future we must expect the same sort of questions to come up, and we may make up our minds, that if we are weak our neighbors will aggress. Our only safety, is to be ready to defend our possessions, and be able to bid defiance to every hostile comer.

A great part of Washington's farewell address was devoted to an expansion of the maxim: "In peace, prepare for war." This is the highest and best wisdom, and if is even more applicable to our present situation than it was ninety years ago. When we were poor, weak and humble, there was little desire to attack us. But now that we are rich, great and proud, the envious and greedy will both be anxious to humiliate and plunder us. Let us be ready, and give them a warm reception. The best means of doing this is by having a navy to defend our ports and harbors. They are vulnerable spots, and we must protect them. The objections that are valid against a standing army have no force when applied to a navy. A navy can never destroy our liberties. The English early saw this, and the same parliament that refused Charles II funds for his troops, appropriated unprecedented sums for war ships. This has always been their policy, and the result is that England to-day is the only European nation that is powerful abroad and free at home. We too may increase our navy with the same results. We have made some slight beginnings, and true patriotism demands that we continue as we have begun. Factional opposition should vanish when it comes to a national interest like this, and democrat and republican should both work together for the protection of our common country.

W. I. SWOOPE.

GOV. BEAVER has appointed a commission for the purpose of inquiring into the practicability of constructing a ship canal to connect the waters of Lake Erie with the Ohio river in Western Pennsylvania. It is probable that the commissioners will make a report in favor of the scheme, as there are no difficulties to encounter which modern engineering science cannot surmount. If the canal, which has been talked of for many years, should ever be built, it will be a great aid to the commerce of Pittsburgh. But whether the State, which would be called upon to foot the bills, will be able to perform such a work, or at least to advance the necessary money, is another question. It is also likely that the influence of the railroads would be exerted against such a project; so that in view of the heavy expense and the opposition which would need to be met, the probabilities of the early construction of such a canal are by no means bright.

AN agitation is going on in Mexico concerning the advisability of amending the Constitution in regard to the Presidential office. The Mexicans are disposed to look upon the Constitution of the United States as a model and they are desireus of allowing the President to be re-elected and of creating the additional office of Vice-President. In our own country the tendency is directly the opposite. The Vice-Presidency is here regarded as an obscure and almost superfluous office, or, as the late Mr. Conkling once called it, a "short cut to oblivion." If an office under that name should be created in Mexico, it will probably have more real power and dignity attached to it than the Vice-Presidency in the United States now has. As for making the President re-elective, it may be confidentially said that if a natural constitutional convention were now in session at Washington, one of its first acts would be the restriction of the occupancy of the Presidential office to a single term.

SUNDAY observance in Europe is a very different thing from a Sunday observance in Great Britain or in the United States. One of the most notable countries is Russia. But recently twelve hundred merchants at St. Petersburg have expressed their willingness to close their places of business on that day so that it would be made a day of rest to the laborer. In most European countries where it is partially observed Sunday has been made a gala day, and attempts are being constantly made to introduce this custom into our cities where foreign-born population are in considerable numbers. It is an event of some importance, therefore, when we see the least effort being made to bring about a Sabbath observance, as a day of rest from labor, pure and simple.

THERE is no newspaper in New York city which prints such beautiful numbers as the Mail and Express. On Saturday last a number was issued which is filled with beautiful illustrations and valuable reading and seems to be dedicated to a two fold object—the Three Americas Congress, now touring over the country, and the Columbus World's Exposition of 1892. The Mail and Express is a great credit to journalism.

BY the time the representatives of the Southern countries of the American Continent get through with their tour over the country, they will have a much better idea of the extent and power of the United States than they have ever before had. Our industrial progress will doubtless be a revelation to them and the visit will probably result in a large increase of trade between these counties and the United States.

THUS far eight jurymen for the Cronin trial have been secured and strange to say they are all Americans and above the average in intelligence. The progress in the Cronin case is tiresomely slow, but the carefulness which is responsible for slowness is being productive of good results. A week from now the trial ought to be well under way with something approximating to a model jury.

THE New York and Washington fast express train jumped the track on Saturday morning about twenty miles from Washington. The train contained many passengers, among whom were Knights Templar. Though none were killed or seriously injured, a large number received painful wounds.

A REVOLUTIONARY THREAT.

Mr. Mills, of Texas, seems to be keeping up his record as one of the most rancorous rebels now prominent in the Democratic party. That his party has been unsuccessful in all the recent elections has aroused his deepest hatred and he indulges in dire threats of what he and his party will do to prevent any usefu legislation. The Philadelphia Press thus refers to this indiscreet deliverance of Mr. Mills:

Among the important measures that Congress will be expected to pass at its next session is that of a national bankrupt law. Commercial bodies in various cities are again urging such legislation, and there is a fair prospect for favorable action in Congress, providing the House adopts rules that will permit the majority to govern. This is the first requisite to any new legislation. But if Mr. Mills, of Texas, speaks for his party, the Democrats propose to prevent all legislation other than the passage of the appropriation bills. Mr. Mills says:

"We do not propose that the Republican majority shall pass a single measure without our consent. For instance, you may depend upon it that the rules of the House will not be changed by the Republican majority in any essential feature. We do not propose to permit them to be changed. In other words, we propose to exercise control of the House just as much as though we were still in the majority, because we know that our minority is strong enough to make us virtual rulers."

If the parliamentary insurrection proposed by Mr. Mills should succeed, and the minority rather than the majority rule in Congress, of course there would be no chance for the passage of a national bankrupt law. Nor, for that matter, for the revision of the tariff, nor for any other measure demanded by the people. But this insurrection will not be successful. Mr. Mills' talk is twenty-nine years behind the times. Before the war such threats from Southern leaders were common. Times have changed, however, and Mr. Mills will find that out.

The Democrats will not "exercise control of the House just as much as though still in the majority," and Mr. Mills is very foolish to say any such thing. The majority will not only control the House but we expect to see it pass many bills against which Mr. Mills will vainly array his revolutionary forces. Moreover, it is not improbable that Democratic members will be found supporting these wise measures one of which will, no doubt be a national bankrupt act.

The commercial relations of the country have been unified by steam, and electricity and uniformity in commercial laws has become a necessity. The diverse and complicated statutes on the subject of bankruptcy which now exist in the various states are a serious hindrance to trade. The only persons who will be injured by a national bankrupt act are the dishonest ones. Their interests should not be considered by Congress. Some of the Southern members who have heretofore been hostile to such an act are now quoted in favor of it, and it will probably not be difficult to pass a fair bill at the coming session.

The only obstacle in the way will be the revolutionary attempt to compel the adoption of such rules as will make it possible for a few members to prevent the passage of any bill they choose to oppose. And we do not look upon that as a serious obstacle.

WILLIAM E. GRAY, ESQ., is known in every part of Centre county. He is a man who makes friends wherever he goes, because he is and has been the friend of all. He is the son of a farmer and has largely made his own way in life, graduating with honor from the State College. His graduating address was the best made by any member of the class and the Democratic papers praised it highly. This shows the ability of the young man who is asking your votes for District Attorney. His career at the bar since his admission has been excellent. He has never before asked for an office. Vote for him.

THE dynamite warship Vesuvius has been given a thorough test and is pronounced by the officers making the test a success above expectation. The speed was better than the requirements and the guns did almost twice as well as the contract called for, firing five times in seventeen minutes, when the limit was thirty minutes. No innovation in warship construction since the introduction of iron armor is as important as this. It may revolutionize naval warfare.

The Conspiracy Against Justice.

The attempts made to corrupt certain jurymen in the Cronin case are among the most audacious in the history of criminal trials. It appears that large sums, ranging from $1,000 up to $5,000, were offered as bribes to veniremen, on condition that they would, when regularly empanled, steadily vote to 'hang' the jury; in other words, to prevent an agreement. The Prosecuting-Attorney, on obtaining evidence of the conspiracy, at once instituted an investigation which led to the incrimination of two bailiffs, or Sheriff's deputies, whose duty it was to look after the interests of the defendants in court.

The revelations were of the most startling character and warranted the Court in at once summoning a special grand jury to hear the evidence and frame bills of indictment against the guilty persons. There is no room to doubt that the conspiracy was hatched by persons whose names are yet unknown, and that its ramifications, if successfully traced, will be found in that treasonable organization, the Clanna-Gael. The penitentiary doors are yawning for a set of unconscionable scoundrels who are determined to resort to any crime, no matter how bold or heinous, in order to save the necks of the assassins of Dr. Cronin.

THE arrangements of the Senators of the new States promises to be no easy question for solution by the coming Senate. Without the new State representatives the Senate will have seventy-six members, divided into three classes the first of twenty-five members, whose terms expire March 4, 1893; the second of twenty-six members, whose terms end March 4, 1895 and, the third of twenty-five members whose terms end March 4, 1891. The eight Senators of the new States will be divided among these classes, when each will contain twenty-eight members. Now, which Senators are to have the long, which the middle and which the short terms? The fact that the two Senators from Montana are Democrats makes the solution of the assignment problem all the more interesting. The Republicans will want to give the Montana delegates a short and middle term, while the Democrats will want to give them long and middle terms. Lot-drawing among the eight new Senators will not settle the matter, for Senators from the same State might draw terms of similar length, which would be contrary to the usage of the Senate and in opposition to the spirit of the Constitution. At no time since the first Congress has more than one State been admitted at once, nor is there known to be any provision for such a contingency. The Senate will have to be a law unto itself.

THE efforts to establish the tin-plate industry in this country are agitating the manufacturing world of Great Britain, which has long had a monopoly of the business and means to continue it if it can. The London Ironmonger advises its readers that a bill will be introduced into Congress to increase the existing tariff on tin-plates and asks the manufacturers to defeat any such legistation. Sooner or later it says the "tin-plate monopoly of South Wales and Monmouthshire" will be broken up if the American scheme succeeds. But it sees no reason for the English manufacturers to lose courage yet, as they have possession of the business, a well-established trade and in addition "strong allies in the United States, and if the alliance is made the most of" it has "very considerable doubts of the success of any application to Congress to increase the present duties. But to increase that result the makers and their business connections must not only work, but work hard to checkmate the advances of the American ultraprotectionists." In other words, the Ironmonger advises the English manufacturers to use the Democratic Congressmen as instruments to defeat the proposed protective duties. The American tin-plate backers should be on the lookout for British gold in the coming Congress.

MRS. LEONORA M. BARRY, in her report relating to the working-women of Europe, says: 'I saw many women in Paris yoked into carts, hauling market produce and merchandise of all kinds. Sometimes the woman pulled the great lumbering cart unaided, but sometimes she was assisted by either a dog or a donkey. This condition among women was also found at Brussels; here the law specifies how many pounds the dog shall pull, but the woman may pull all she can."

Poetry.

MEMORY.

BY GEN'L JAMES A. GARFIELD.

This little poem from the pen of our beloved President, was written before his first term in Congress, hence some twenty years ago. At the time possibly the presidency of a Christian college was the summit where sunbeams fell, but the last lines are all but a prophecy:

'Tis beauteous night, the stars look brightly down
Upon the earth, decked in her robe of snow.
No light gleams at the window, save my own,
Which gives its cheer to midnight and to me;
And now, with noiseless step, sweet memory comes
And leads me through her twilight helms.
What poet's tuneful lyre has ever sung
Or delicate pencil e'er portrayed
The enchanted, shadowy land where memory dwells.
It has its valleys, cheerless, lone and drear.
Dark shaded by the mournful cypress tree,
And yet its sunlight mountain tops are bathed
In heaven's own blue. Upon its craggy cliffs,
Robed in the dreamy light of distant years,
Are clustered joys serene, of other days.
Upon its gentle, sloping hill side bend
The weeping willow t o'er the sacred dust
Of dear departed ones, and yet in that land
Where e'er our footsteps fall upon the shore
They that were sleeping rise from out the dust
Of death's long silent years, and round us stand
As first they did before the prison tomb
Received their clay within its voiceless halls.
The heavens that bend above that land are hung
With sounds of various hues. Some dark and chill
Surcharged with sorrow, cast their sombre shade
Upon the sunny joyous land below;
Others are floating through the dreamy air
White as the falling snow, their margins tinged
With gold and crimson hues, their shadows fall
Upon the flowery meads and sunny slopes
Soft the shadow of an angel's wing
When the rough battle of the day is done
And evening's peace falls gently on the heart
Into the utmost verge of memory's land,
Where earth and sky, in dreary distance meet
And memory dim with dark oblivion joins—
Where woke the first remembered sounds that fell
Upon the ear in childhood's early morn
And wandering thence along the rolling years,
I see the shadow of former self.
Gliding from childhood up to man's estate
The path of youth winds down through many a vale
And oh the brink of many a dread abyss
From out whose darkness comes no ray of light
Save that a phantom dances o'er the gulf—
And beckons o'er the verge. Again the path
Leads o er the summit, where the sunbeams fall
And thus, in light and sunshine, and gloom
Sorrow and joy, this life path leads along.

Our Story Telier.

A PRACTICAL JOKE.

New York LEDGER.

The picnic at Allen's Corners was over. Rather prematurely over, perhaps, on account of a tremendous thunder-storm, accompanied with a tornado-like gust of wind and jagged streaks of blue lightning, that seemed to bury themselves in the ground. Horses and vehicles were brought hurriedly to the edge of the platform; the young people dispersed like a flock of sheep in various directions.

'I don't care,' said Frank Warren, speaking between his teeth. 'I wasn't having such a particularly pleasant time. Matty Vail was behaving very badly.'

'It didn't make much difference to me,' said Miss Vail, with a toss of her curly head. 'I've danced all I wanted to, and Frank Warren has been glaring at me like a Bluebeard the whole time. Such impudence, indeed! And me not regularly engaged to him, after all! One thing is quite certain, I never shall be now! And as for riding all the way home to Daisyville with him to-night, I won't do it! There's that little girl from the city; I'll just put her in my place. Her shoes are dreadfully thin, and she has no umbrella. She'll be glad of a chance to ride. And I'll go with Harry Dix, or Sam Pratt!'

'Oh, Mat!' cried Miss Dillon, Matty's chief confidante and bosom friend, 'what will he say?'

'What he pleases—when he finds it out.'

'So, when Mr. Warren's handsome black horse was led up, shying and rearing in the uncertain glimmer of the lanterns and the flash of lightning, Matilda Howitt found herself, she scarcely knew how, in the seat beside the handsome young farmer. She sat quite silent, wondering if it was improper to ride home with a gentleman to whom she had never been formally introduced, and trembling ever and anon at the storm and her unwonted companionship, and the wild speed of "Black Douglas," as he flew along the pitch-dark dripping roads.

'Are you frightened?' Mr. Warren asked, in a low voice, when they had gone a little way.

'N-not much!' faltered Matilda; and then she trembled more than ever, as an arm crept, slowly but surely, around her waist. But what was she to do? There was no back to the seat—and there was danger of her being jerked out, in one of these sudden curves!

'Don't be afraid,' soothed Warren. 'You know you are safe with me—in spite of everything!'

'Ye.e-es,' murmured Matilda Howitt.

'Matty!'

She was silent. This growing intimacy was beginning to be appalling.

'Matty!' accompanied with a gentle pressure of the encircling arm. 'Don't be cross with me, Matty. You know how much I love you, my own one!'

'Oh, gracious me!' thought Miss Howitt, 'what will he be saying next?'

'You will promise to be my wife, Matty? It may seem sudden, but—Whoa, you villain!'

For 'Black Douglas' had given a tremendous sideways jump, and required all his master's will and energy to subdue him; and by the time they had reached the Vail farm house, Matilda Howitt found herself engaged, by implication, to a young man she never had seen before in her life until that day.

She jumped out and ran quickly into the house. Mrs. Vail met her in the hall.

'Where's Matty?' she cried. 'Who are you?'

'I'm Matilda Howitt,' said the girl. 'I'm here because he left me. I—I don't quite know why; but the horse behaved so badly, and the place where I board is three miles beyond the swamp. Please, can't I stay all night?'

'Why, of course,' said Mrs. Vail. 'You're the city school-ma'am, ain't you, that boards to Widow Dunkley's? Come in and sit down and dry your clothes! Dreadful shower, ain't it? I do wish our Matty was safe at home!'

All this was very unconventional. But then, thought little Miss Howitt, country life is unconventional. In New York it would have taken a month at the very least, for a young man to screw himself up to the proposing point. Did she love this man well enough to marry him? Well, she was not altogether certain of that. But he was certainly very handsome, and her heart gave a not altogether unpleasant jump when she remembered that gentle pressure around her waist. If this was love—.

But here the current of her reflections was interrupted by the arrival of Matty Vail herself—"Martha Alida," was her christened name—in the company of Mr. Sam Pratt, a dashing cavalier of another village.

'It's not late,' said Sam. 'Can't I come in? Just for a little while.'

'Nonsense, Sam,' said the belle.

'Oh, now, Matty!'

'Nonsense, I say.' And Miss Vail shut the door in Mr. Pratt's face with a laugh.

'He's not half so pleasant as Frank, after all,' said Matty to herself; and then followed an interview with her unexpected guest.

'How nice!' cried Matty. 'We can sleep together, and talk everything over, can't we? Oh, no, ma; I'm not wet much, and you needn't have saved tea for us. We had a lovely supper in the woods.'

'Oh!' cried Matilda Howitt, clasping Miss Vail's hand, 'I've so much to tell you!'

Matty's eyes sparkled.

'What did he say?'

'I'll tell you after the lamp is put out,' said Miss Howitt. 'He really and actually did—propose!'

'Nonsense!' said Matty Vail biting her lip. 'You must have misunderstood him.'

'Misunderstood, indeed!' retorted Miss Howitt. 'I'm sure he spoke plain enough.'

'But you wouldn't accept a man who was caught in such a trap as that?'

'A trap!' stammered Miss Howitt.

'Yes—of course. He thought it was me.'

'Do you suppose he did' [in faltering accents)?

'There can't be a doubt about it.'

'Then, of course, there's an end of this matter,' said Matilda, with a little quiver in her voice.

'But you'll tell me just what he said?'

'No; I certainly shall not betray his confidences.'

'Confidence, indeed!' flashed out Matty Vail. 'A pretty confidence! But do tell me, just for the joke of the matter.'

Matilda was silent. To her it was no joke.

'I'd have you to know that I have had a proposal, too,' added Matty, brushing out her luxuriant blonde tresses. 'That ridiculous Pratt. Of course, I only put him off. I do think all the men are crazy!'

Matty Howitt made no answer, but she shed a few silent, bitter tears after she was in bed. The sensation of 'being engaged' was very pleasant. It was a pity that it had been so brief!

'As good as engaged to Matty Vail, are you?' said Mr. Warren, who had met Sam Pratt at the postoffice next day. 'May I ask when this happened?'

'Last night coming home from the picnic.'

'A it happened, she came home with me.'

Sam Pratt rubbed his hands gleefully.

'All that was a joke, old fellow' said he. 'You brought home the little New York school-teacher, who boards at Ma'am Dunkley's! Matty Vail managed all that. You don't mean to say you never found it out? I tell you, Mat and I had a good laugh over it going home!

Frank Warren set his teeth tightly together. That girl who could enjoy a 'good laugh' with Sam Pratt over such a practical joke as this was rapidly losing caste in his estimation.'

'I congratulate y u,' said he, somewhat bitterly.

'Knew you'd be pleased, old fellow' said Sam, smiling broadly. 'But they tell me the school teacher takes it very hard. Cried all night. Went home before daylight on foot, all the way to the swamp. Thought that you were dead in love with her. Didn't like the idea of its bein all a put-up job.'

Frank Warren turned upon him with a sudden flash in his eyes.

'And who told you,' said he, 'that it was a put-up job?'

'Eh!' Sam's gooseberry colored orbs dilated with surprise. 'You don't tell me—'

'I tell you that it would be a particularly good idea for you to mind your own affairs.'

Frank Warren went straight to the Widow Dunkley's and asked for Miss Howitt. Matty came to him with cheeks unnaturally red, and a restless sparkle in her dark gray eyes.

'I—I am very sorry,' she began.

'Sorry for what? Not that I asked you to be my wife, I hope,' said the young man, cheerily.

She was not as pretty as Matty Vail, he thought, but she was as dainty and delicate, like a violet blossoming in the shade.

'But you didn't mean it,' she faltered.

'I am not in the habit of saying what I don't mean. I am here to confirm my last night's words. Will you confirm yours, Miss Howitt?'

'But I know so little of you, Mr. Warren.'

'That is a disability which can easily be remedied in time. Won't you trust me.'

And she decided to trust him.

The village belle was discomfited beyond measure when she heard that her practical joke had turned into reality. For, in her secret heart she had loved Frank Warren as much as it was in her to love anybody.

'Engaged to you, indeed!' she cried to Sam Pratt, with blazing eyes. 'How dare you say such a thing? I wouldn't marry you if there wasn't another man in the world!'

And Mr. Pratt departed, inconsolable.

As for Mr. Warren, he never had cause to repent his sudden resolve. Matilda Howitt made him the best of gentle little wives.

'Although it was rather unconventional, that wooing of yours, Frank,' said she. 'Now wasn't it?'

'Well, rather so, I must admit,' said the young husband. 'However, Matty, all s well that ends well, you know.'

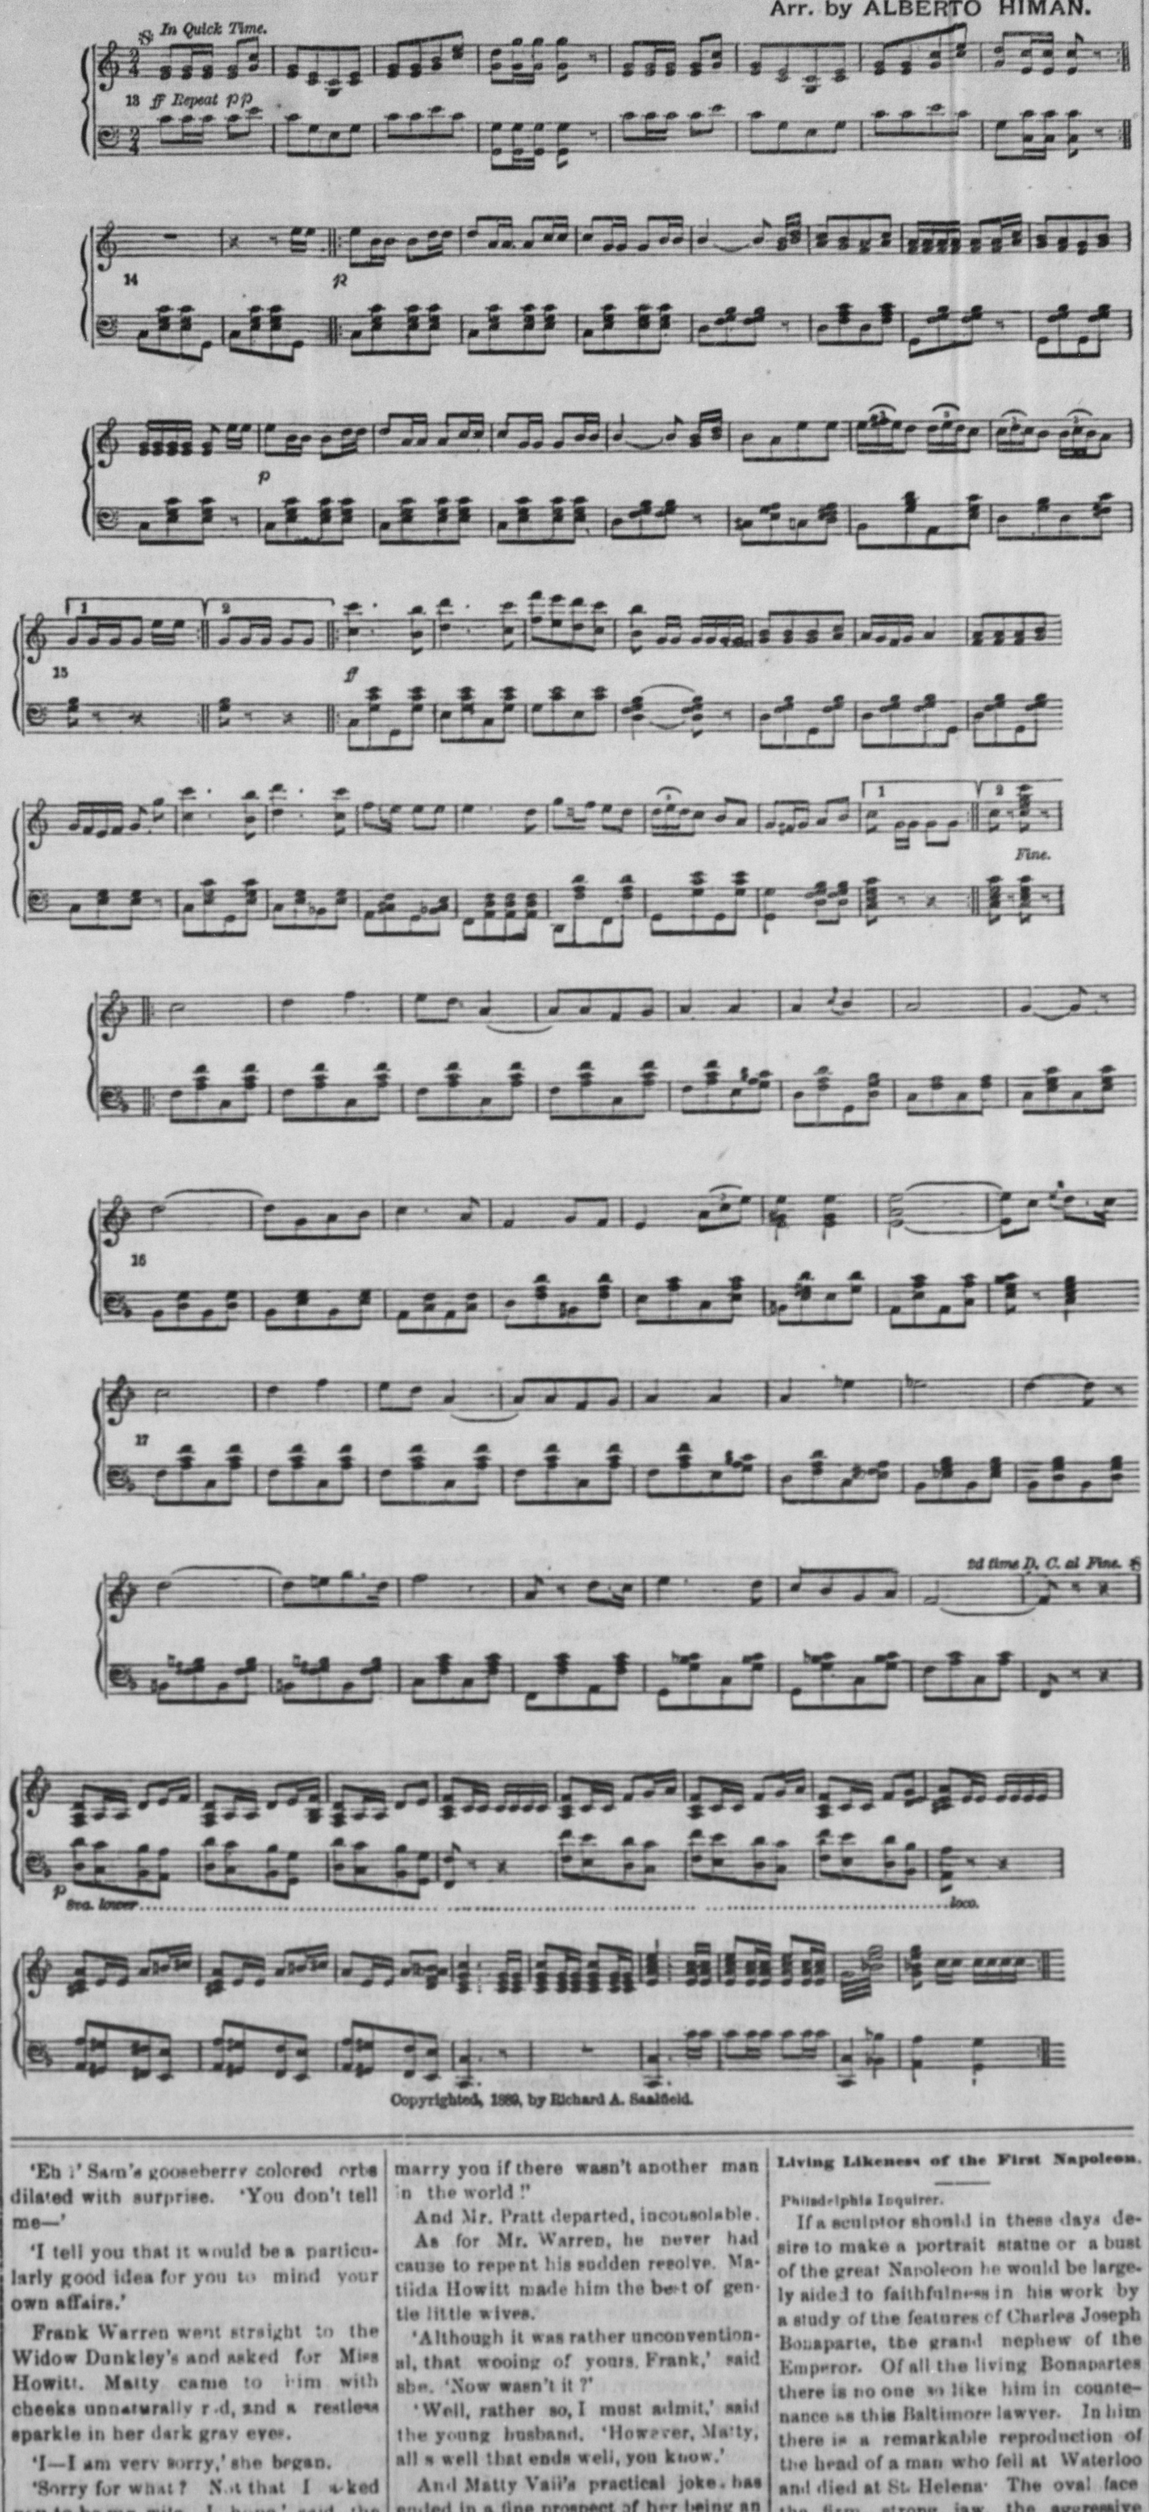
And Matty Vail's practical joke has ended in a fine prospect of her being an old maid at last.

THE FATHER VICTORY.

LE PERE LA VICTOIRE.

Played by Gilmore's Band, and published by permission of R. A. Saalfield, 41 Union Square, N. Y.

Arr. by ALBERTO HIMAN.



Copyrighted, 1889, by Richard A. Saalfield.

When Wilberforce was a candidate for Parliament his brilliant sister offered a new gown to the wife of every freeman who would vote for her brother, on which a cry was raised: 'Miss Wilberforce for ever.' She replied: 'I thank you, gentlemen, but I cannot agree with you I do not wish to be Miss Wilberforce for ever."

Only a Question of Time.—Guest (who has been waiting impatiently for his pastry): "I ordered that tapioca pudding at least fifteen minutes ago." Waiter: "Yes, sah, Takes 'bout two hours for tapioca to soak. It'll be along by an' by. Ere's one of the al'noon papers sah"

Coming Home from a Picnic.—John: "But now, look here, Susie, do you doubt that I love you?" Susan: "No a bit of it, John; I know you wouldn't have squandered sixty cents for ice cream and things unless you were in dead earnest."

Living Likeness of the First Napoleon.

Philadelphia Inquirer.

If a sculptor should in these days desire to make a portrait statue or a bust of the great Napoleon he would be largely aided to faithfulness in his work by a study of the features of Charles Joseph Bonaparte, the grand nephew of the Emperor. Of all the living Bonapartes there is no one so like him in countenance as this Baltimore lawyer. In him there is a remarkable reproduction of the head of a man who fell at Waterloo and died at St. Helena. The oval face the firm, strong jaw, the aggressive chin, the overhanging forehead and the piercing eye are all there, and the resemblance is increased by Mr. Bonaparte's fashion of bringing his hair down to something like a bang on his brow, which is familiar in the portraits of his grand-uncle.

Dramatic Note.—Smith visits his friend Jones, the playwright, and observes with regret that Jones abuses his wife shamefully, so he says to Jones: 'Why do you talk so roughly to your wife?' 'I hate to do it, but I am obliged to?' 'How are you obliged to?' Well, you see. I am writing a tragedy, and I have to keep myself in a proper frame of mind. You should see how I skylark with her when I'm writing a comedy."

Must Have Been False.—Little Roger—'Uncle John, I heard papa say you got pretty well soaked last night. Did it rain very hard?' Uncle John [with a sickly smile]—'I don't exactly remember, Roger: I know I was dry enough.'

TOMATO CATSUP.

One of the most wonderful manufactures of recent growth is that of catsup. A great number of factories have originated in the past ten years, and competing brands are as plentiful as those in any line of manufactured articles. Tomato catsup has conquered the world. In our younger days our mothers used to put up a supply about this time every year for winter use, and it was a condiment occasionally served at table. Now it has taken its place with the salt and pepper in daily use. Some people eat it three times a day, and many millions of gallons are required to supply the annual demand. This popularity of catsup has made tomatoes as profitable a crop as wheat, and many farmers plant acres of vines every year just to supply the catsup factories; at 20 cents a bushel an acre of tomatoes is always profitable. The farmer simply fills his wagon bed with the ripe fruit and hauls the load to town. There is no waste, for the riper the fruit the better for catsup. The old world is now using American catsup, and the trade is always on the increase.

A Cool Reception.

"It's pity," said Binks to Banks, 'that no one ever fully penetrated the Arctic regions. I'm sure the Aurora Borealis would receive explorers with great courtesy."

"That's nonsense," said Banks. "The idea of expecting the Aurora Borealis to be polite."

"But it is Pole light, just the same."

Wifely Care.—"John, do tie a knot in your handkerchief before you go to bed so as not to forget to get up tomorrow at four o'clock.

Uncle Harry: "Well, Johnnie, and how did you like the ride on Uncle Harry's knee?" Johnnie: "Oh, it was ice; but I had a ride on a real donkey yesterday."

A Great Improvement.—Bobby (at the table): "Ma, chuck me a piece of bread." Mother (shocked): "Bobby, is that the way to ask for bread?" Bobby (guiltily): "Chuck me a piece of bread, please."

'Well, Mr. Assessor, what are you going to make out of your boy?' 'I think he will do for a policeman, because I can never find him when I want him.'

Delinquent Subscriber—'I don't like the Spread Eagle as I used to. I think the paper is rather dry.' Sarcastic Editor—'I don't see how it can be dry. There is considerable due on your copy.'

Unable to Execute the Order.—Silver Smith (giving his first order to Mr. LeDaub, a new designer)—'The first thing I want is a characteristic group of six modern salt-cellars"—Mr. LeDaub presenting four portraits the next morning)—'Here are four, sir, but all the others were too busy getting ready for their summer vacations to give me a sitting.

Ethel (entering parlor)—"Oh, Aggie, so glad to see you." (They kiss). "Why, you are engaged to be married." Aggie—"How do you know?" "I can tell by the way you kiss."

Sympathetic Citizen: "Is he fatally wounded, do you think, officer?"

Policeman: "Two av the wounds is fatal, sor, but the third is not, an' if we can lave him rest quiet for a fwhile. I think he wud come around all right!"

"Did you ever know anyone to get rich through the smoking habit?"

"Yes, I did. Knew two men."

"Who were they?"

"George Smith and Harry Bright."

"The largest cigarette manufacturers in the country."

"John," said Mrs. Bumbleton to her son; "your grammar is very bad."

"In what respect?"

"You said 'copyrighted' just now, in talking about an article you saw in the paper."

"So I did."

"I should think anyone with as much schooling as you've had would know that you ought to say 'copywritten.'"

Young Simpkins. "I went to see the lovely Clara last night, and do you know she asked me to sit beside her on the divan. What do you say to that?" Charley: "I should say sofa so good."

"Pawn me honah, me deah boy." "Don't," interrupted his friend, "I beg of you, don't; you couldn't raise enough on it to buy a cord for your eye-glass." And the conversation was not resumed.

Farmer's son: "Did you hire the man, father?"

Farmer: "I wanted to, but he wouldn't accept the place."

F S: "What did you offer him?"

F: "I offered him $60 a month and find himself."

F S: "And he thought $60 too little?"

F: "No, he was satisfied with the wages, but he said e couldn't find himself."

F S: "Why not."

F: 'Because he is an ex-detective from Chicago. He said he never could find anything."

Miss——: "Why, John, these gloves are not mates." John: "I know they're not, Miss; and what troubles me most is, the other pair what's in on the table do be in the same predicament as these."

"I told you, dear," said the cannibal's wife, "not to eat that man. He was too green, and now you've got the morbus again."

Scared by a Red Light.

Chicago Herald.

The recent railroad disaster on the Rock Island has recalled a number of stories regarding the carelessness of engineers and other men in the operating department of railroads. An old railroader was telling yesterday of the time when he used to be conductor of a freight train. It was his misfortune to have an abnormally lazy engineer, who would go to sleep on the slightest provocation. Whenever the train was side tracked to wait the passage of an express train, the engineer would lie down on his seat in the cab, prop his feet up against the boiler head and go fast asleep. He would remain that way until the noise of the flying express awoke him. Then he would yawn and prepare to pull out. The boys in the train crew did not like this.

"Why can't he stay awake and watch for signals as we do?" asked one of them one night, as the long train was on a siding waiting for the arrival of "No. 6."

"Well, why don't you see that he keeps awake?" asked the old railroader, who was in charge of the train.

"I will," said the brakeman.

With the assistance of the other boys he firmly set the brakes along the train and then hung a red lantern from the roof of the engine cab, so that it was hanging in front of the window just in front of the slumbering engineer.

These preparations made he put his foot on the old-fashioned crank whistle and there was an awful shriek. The engineer jumped up and saw the red light. Confused for the moment he thought he was about to run into the rear end of another train, so he reversed his engine and jumped into the ditch, nearly breaking his neck. Of course, the engine did not move a peg. The boys were all back in the way-car by this time, and when the sleepy engineer recovered himself and limped up out of the ditch he thought he must have been dreaming. However, he lost a year's growth and never went to sleep at his post after that. He was cured.

A Substitute for the Fourth of July.

Charleston News and Courier

Two gentlemen were arguing the question yesterday as to whether all the signers of the Declaration of Independence affixed their signatures to the document at the same time. It was impossible to settle the dispute without reference to the histories, and it was remarkable how many men to whom the question was put, failed to give an answer promptly. In all probability there is not one man in a thousand who will be able to answer it off-hand.

According to Carroll's "Catechism of History" John Hancock was the only gentleman who signed the Declaration on the 4th of July. One other gentleman signed it in the following November, and the rest, the big majority, made their quill-marks on the 2d of August. According, therefore, to one of the principles, in fact the fundamental principle, of the Constitution of the United States, the Fourth of July should be celebrated on the 2d of August.

The Snow Flower.

La Monde (Paris.)

A very remarkable snow-flower has been discovered by Count Anthoskoff in the most Northern portion of Siberia where the ground is continually covered with frost. This wonderful object shoots forth from the frozen soil only on the first day of each succeeding year. It shines for but a single day, then resolves to its original elements. The leaves are three in number and each about three inches in diameter. They are developed on that side of the stem toward the North, and each seems covered with microscopic crystals of snow.

The flower, when it opens, is star-shaped, its petals of the same length as the leaves and about half an inch in width. On the third day the extremeties of the antlers, which are five in number, show minute glistning specks, which are the seeds of this wonderful flower. Anthoskoff collected some of these seeds and carried them with him to St. Petersburg. They were placed in a pot of snow, where they remained for some time. On the 1st of the following January the miraculous snow-flower burst through its icy covering and displayed its beauties to the wondering Russian royalty.

The Drummer's Ruse.

Bangor Commercial.

A short time ago a drummer from abroad called at a Bangor livery stable and wanted a double team for a ten days' trip into the country, and the stable man refused to let him have one on the ground that he was a stranger. There was much discussion over the matter, and finally the drummer said: "What is your team worth?" "Four hundred and fifty dollars," was the reply. "If I pay you that sum for it, will you buy it back again when I return," asked the customer, and upon receiving an affirmative reply he promptly put up the cash. Ten days later he returned, and driving into the stable he alighted and entered the office, saying, "Well, here is your team and I want my money back." The sum was passed to him and he turned to leave the place when the livery man called out, "Look here, aren't you going to settle for that team?" "For what team?" asked the drummer, in a surprised tone. "For the one you just brought." "Well now," drawled the drummer, "you aren't fool enough to think that I would pay anybody for the use of my own property, are you?" and he shook the dust of the place from his feet.

Patient.—"Well, doctor, what do you think of the swelling on the back of my neck?" Doctor—"I don't like the looks of it, as it is on a very dangerous place; so my advice to you is to keep your eye on it."

"Mrs Mulligan" said Mrs Ginty, "is it well yer falin the day?"

"Yis, very well."

"An' sthrong?"

"Yis, quite sthrong."

"Then praps it's able ye'd be to bring back the two wash tubs yez borried last Monday."

MR. FRANK R. STOCKTON'S new story, "The MERRY CHANTER," which will begin in the November CENTURY, is something like that author's "Casting Away of Mrs. Lecks and Mrs. Aleshine" in its nautical plot. Ex-Minister Lothrop is authority for the statement that the last-named story was read with absorbing interest not only by the Czar of Russia and the entire royal family, but by all the court, and the remarkable adventures of those ladies were the theme of much conversation at dinner-parties and other gatherings in Russia.

It may be stated on excellent authority that Mr. Kennan's papers on Siberia in THE CENTURY have been read by the Czar—with what result remains to be seen.

ROBERT NEILSON Supt. Penn'a.

The Art of Prosperity.

The Eureka man has been doing for some time past considerable advertising, and as I do not want to get all the good there is in this world, let my brother merchants take a word of advice from me. Some have said to me, "Well, you can afford it, it don't cost you anything." But listen. I do not get it for nothing. The Eureka Grocery store pays for every line of advertising it does, and I have not put a single column into the papers that has not paid two dollars for every one spent by myself or that would have to be spent by any other store in town that would attempt the same thing. And we are now just beginning to reap the full benefit of this labor.

Ask anyone at all acquainted with our business and they will tell you that it is constantly increasing; that it has constantly increased ever since we began, and that our success is due to newspaper advertising. I do not want to be the only merchant in town that can truthfully say that while all around us works are stopping, men rae complaining that work is dull, that the Eureka is the only store whose business is not feeling the depression.

I am conducting three newspapers in this town and I can now speak from experience when I say to you that it will pay you to advertise in these papers; that it will help you much more than your wildest fancy dreams. I will set the Eureka advertisements into the remotest corner to give you the best place, or just the place you want.

People will read the Eureka articles any how, no matter where I place them. Now, believe me, "it is straight," I know it will do you good, and in the light of my own experience I advise you to try it, and if any of your customers want anything you have not got send them to the Eureka Grocery store, next door to Post Office, Bellefonte, Pa., and we will supply them, and then look out. You may never get them back again, but if you don't we will blame that on Smith, that is if you are in the grocery trade.

Tell me not that advertising
Is at best an empty dream,
For its charms are more surprising
(and the Eureka man, who has tried it tells you plainly that its effects are far more astonishing.)
Than its dull old-fashioned practitioners could ever deem.

And which ever way thou turnest
Thou will find upon the whole,
Those who advertise in earnest
(Yes, we have only to glance at the most successful firms all over the country to see that those who do the thing properly)
Soonest reach the wished-for goal.

Would'st thou then a lesson borrow?
Would'st thou know the royal way?
Advertise then so to-morrow
(Don't let a little expense deter you; you are merely casting your bread upon the waters, and you will soon have the satisfaction of knowing that each to-morrow)
Finds thee richer than to-day.

Advertise then! No retreating!
Let the senseless crockers rave:
While your heart with hope is beating
(You will always find a lot of people in Bellefonte as everywhere else who are blind to their interests; but while you are making fame and fortune)
They will find oblivion's grave.

Printer's ink will lead the battle—
Printer's ink, the balm of life;
Printer's ink—no dirt, no rattle—
(No, it does it's work on the quiet; and in the great war of competition which is now going on in this town, when judiciously and thickly laid on, it always)
Leads the van against the strife.

Advertisers oft remind us
We can make success sublime,
Make our pile and leave behind us
(Exactly, that's just where it comes in. We not only expect to feather our own nest, but we at the Eureka hope to provide for the prosperity and well-being of generations yet unborn, and so leave behind us)
What defies the touch of time.

Seeing which, perchance another
Struggling man with weary brain,
Some non-advertising brother,
(A good example is always to be commended, especially in the matter of advertising; and many a struggling business man seeing the secret of our success)
May with wisdom try again.

Advertise then: Up and doing!
So advert a meaner fate,
And, the wiser course pursuing,
(You will find that you will soon be in a position to look the world in the face, if you will only)
Learn to advertise and wait!

Of course, there are many ways of advertising, but we are of the opinion that there is no form or method so effective as newspaper advertising. It goes right into the home, and it goes to stay. I do not suppose that an "add" of "New Spring Goods," put in the paper and never changed the year through would do the work it should. I never tried that method. Such an "add" would have to do its most effective work, at least I should think, in the first three months.

Personally, we have always looked upon such work as a public notice that here is a careless merchant. But if you will take hold of this matter, and give it the same attention that you would or should give any other important matter, it can no do otherwise than pay. I speak to you in the light of a year's experience and "I am giving it to you straight."

A GIANT FEDERATION.

Possible Result of the Engineers' Convention at Denver.

THE SECRET AGREEMENT.

It Contemplates an Organization Embracing Nearly All Railroad Employes and the Knights of Labor—Delegates from Mexico and Canada.

DENVER, Oct. 16.—Over 500 delegates are in attendance at the convention of the National Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. The gathering is of an international character, Mexico and Canada, as well as the United States, being represented. Chief Arthur presides, the proceedings being conducted with closed doors. Should the convention indorse the action of its representatives in federating with the firemen, switchmen and brakemen, and the Knights of Labor, the biggest labor federation in the world will have been brought into existence.

The Secret Agreement.

The secret agreement is as follows:

First—Upon the system of the Union Pacific railway there shall be organized a board of federation, to consist of three members from each organization represented.

Second—The Brotherhoods of Locomotive Firemen, Locomotive Engineers and Railroad Brakemen, the Knights of Labor and the Switchmen's Mutual association shall receive and consider the application of any other organization on the system to join the federated board, to be accepted as the majority shall see fit; and agree to these articles of federation to govern our relations with the management of the systems upon which we are employed.

Third—The members of the board of federation shall be representatives of the executive grievance committee or boards of adjustment of their respective organizations.

Fourth—In case of the executive or grievance committee of either organization failing to effect a settlement satisfactory to them, they should comply with the laws of their organization regarding grievances and strikes, and if their action in the matter receives the indorsement of their organization said grievance should be submitted to the federal board for final action.

A Pull All Together.

Fifth—Should the federated board agree on the justness of the alleged grievance they should proceed to adjust the same.

Sixth—The federated board failing to satisfactorily adjust the difficulty should notify the organization presenting the grievance of such failure, informing them that if they desire to go beyond these powerful measures they shall have the entire moral and, if necessary, financial support of all the organizations represented on the board.

Seventh—Should the organization where the grievance originated conclude that, in order to obtain the justice demanded, a strike is necessary, the federated board shall have authority, by a two-thirds vote, if in their judgment they deem it desirable to do so, to order all other organizations of the system represented on the board to join in struggle to bring about a speedy settlement.

For Mutual Benefit.

Eighth—The organizations represented in this agreement mutually agree to do all in their power to build up and strengthen each other by influencing all persons to become members of the organization representing their trade or calling.

Ninth—An expelled member of either organization shall be ineligible to membership in any of the other organizations unless by the consent of the organization from which he was expelled.

Fifty Spring Valley Miners Go to Work.

SPRING VALLEY, Ills., Oct. 16.—About fifty miners assembled at the No. 1 shaft of the Spring Valley Coal company Monday and went to work. No one offered to molest them. The main body of the miners are determined never to go to work again until the Federation is recognized, and claim that they can fight it out for a year. Mr. Scott is fully determined never to treat with the miners again under any circumstances. He is now paying the same prices that his competitors are. A car load of clothing and provisions came in Monday from Chicago.

A Call for a Labor Convention.

NEW YORK, Oct. 16.—President Samuel Gompers has issued a call for the fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor, to be held Tuesday, Dec. 10, 1889, at Wells' Memorial hall, 987 Washington street, Boston, Mass. One of the principal features of the convention will be the transformation, if advisable, into an organized movement for its realization of the agitation for the establishment of the eight hour work day upon May 1, 1890, as proposed by the recent St. Louis convention.

Fatal Result of a Drunken Dance.

PORTLAND, Ore., Oct. 16.—A dance was given Sunday night at the house of a man named Barnett, a mile from Olequa. It was attended by a large number of half breeds and Indians, most of them drunk. A general fight ensued, in which several men were hurt. Ed. Patterson, son of a prominent white man, and Robert Welch, son of a Northern Pacific engineer, were present, and left about midnight. They were followed by Henry Julius, who overtook them, and a quarrel occurred, resulting in Patterson shooting Julius in the breast and abdomen. Julius died soon after, and Patterson, who claims self defense, was arrested.

Ex-Register Robinson's Shortage.

PROVIDENCE, Oct. 16.—The examination of the books of Brown university to determine the shortage of ex-Register Gilman P. Robinson is completed, and the expert statement will be signed and sworn to shortly. From a remark made by one of the college officials, it would appear that Robinson's shortage will exceed $6,000, but not very largely.

ONLY ONE ESCAPED.

Frightful Accident on the Main Street Incline in Cincinnati.

FIVE KILLED, THREE HURT

A Cable Used in Hauling a Car Load of Passengers Up a Steep Hill Suddenly Gives Way, and All Are Precipitated to the Bottom.

CINCINNATI, Oct. 16.—A terrible accident happened on the Main street incline plane at 12:15 p. m.

A car had reached the top of the incline when the rope broke and there was nothing to hold the truck.

It went crashing down and ran into the passenger station and office below.

Only One Escaped.

There were nine passengers on board, and five were killed and three more probably fatally injured.

The killed included three men and two women.

Names of Three of the Victims.

The killed, as far as can be ascertained at this time, are:

Michael Kneiss, teacher in the third intermediate school, residence 14 Euclid avenue, Mount Auburn.

Mrs. Ives and Mrs. Shafer.

The place where the catastrophe occurred is not on the line of a cable railroad. Ordinary horse cars are driven, horses and all, upon a wooden platform, which is hoisted up a steep incline to the top of Price Hill by means of a cable.

News About Blue Grass Speeders.

LEXINGTON, Oct. 16.—Henry Noble, the owner of Alcryon, has signified his intention of backing either Alcryon or Nelson against Middleton's gelding Jack for $2,000 a side. It is believed Middleton will accept the banter and the race may be trotted here this week. W. H. Crawford, who bought the 2-year-old colt, Constantine, for $20,000 Saturday last, has decided to trot him this week to beat Axtell's 2-year-old record—2:32½—if he gets a good day and track. If not, he will take him to California and try to lower the 2-year-old record with him there.

Four of Maj. Adams' Toes Cut Off.

FRANKFORT, Ky., Oct. 16.—Maj. G. W. Adams, secretary of state, met with a painful accident at Eminence by which he lost four toes from his left foot and narrowly escaped with his life. He was returning from a trip to Newcastle, and arrived at Eminence as the train was pulling out. In attempting to board the train his foot slipped and a wheel of the car passed over it. He received medical attention at Eminence, and it is not thought that it will be necessary to amputate the foot.

Barrels of Oil Washed Ashore.

NANTUCKET, Mass., Oct. 16.—Some thirty barrels of kerosene oil have been picked up at the east end of the island. The wind had been blowing a gale from the east, and the landing of the oil on the north side indicates that it came from a vessel stranded on the south shoal or in its neighborhood.

The Georgia Farmers' Alliance.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 16.—The farmers' alliance have selected Atlanta as the site for the large warehouse through which the supplies of the 80,000 farmers of the state will be handled. The design of the alliance is to do away with middlemen, thus cutting cost down to a minimum.

The Mob Had a Rope for Robert.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., Oct. 16.—Robert Berrier, who shot and killed his mother-in-law, Mrs. Walzer, near Lexington, last week, was captured Sunday night near Greensboro and taken to Lexington, where he was lynched. He was hanged to a tree on the outskirts of the town.

An Ex-Judge Killed in a Runaway.

ITHACA, N. Y., Oct. 16.—Jesse McKinney, ex-special judge of Tompkins county, sustained fatal injuries Monday night in a runaway accident. He was thrown over the dashboard of his buggy and his skull was fractured in three places by his horse kicking him.

Nominated by the Democrats.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 16.—At the Democratic senatorial convention of the Twenty-eighth district, held at Geneva, Martin J. Sunderland, of Watkins, was nominated by acclamation, no other name being presented.

Result of the Montana Elections.

HELENA, Mont., Oct. 16.—As the returns are now officially returned from every county in Montana, the legislature stands thus: Senate—Republicans, 8; Democrats, 8. House—Republicans, 30; Democrats, 25.

Steamship Engineers on Strike.

ANTWERP, Oct. 16.—All the engineers and stokers on the transatlantic steamers lying at this port have struck for an increase in wages, and a number of vessels ready to sail are delayed in consequence.

Named by Nebraska Republicans.

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 16.—Secretary of State G. L. Laws has been nominated by the Republican congressional convention to succeed the late Congressman Laird.

BRIEF MENTION.

The Presbyterian synod of Pennsylvania, embracing Pennsylvania and West Virginia churches, is in session at Altoona today.

Hon. Samuel J. Randall's health continues to improve at Washington.

Governor Beaver has sent $15,000 to Williamsport as a contribution to the flood relief fund of that city, in accordance with an agreement made with the late Judge Cummin.

The breaking of the third splash dam at Williamsport was postponed, but the recent rains caused the Susquehanna to rise, thereby breaking the dam and saving thousands of dollars to the lumbermen.

The Earl of Galloway has been acquitted at Dumfries of assaulting a little girl.

At the session of the general council of the Lutheran church, at Pittsburg, a committee was appointed to report on the feasibility of establishing a seminary in Chicago, and a resolution proclaiming that The Kirchenblatt, a German church paper published in Philadelphia and Reading, had no official connection with the council, was adopted.

The Turner-Atchison feud in Harlan county, Ky., has been renewed by the killing of John Cowood and Hezekiah Hall.

The white settlers among the Chickasaw Indians, who have been disfranchised by the nations, intend to appeal to congress for relief.

The Duty of Republicans.

In a sentence, the supreme duty this fall will be to vote for every man on the Republican ticket. And as election day is not far in the future, it will not be necessary to wait long to perform that duty. You can occupy part of the intervening time in urging your friends to do the same.

The reason why you should vote for it is—first, because it is Republican and therefore representative of the best principles. Second, because it is an unexceptionally excellent ticket. Third, because by voting for it our county may be freed from ring rule. The hand of bossism is so still apparent in all the Democratic political management.

For Associate Judge we have on our ticket a soldier. In battle Michael M. Musser was brave. In politics he has been brave and wise, shewing his colors among a people who during many years, had no sympathy with him politically. He will be a most excellent Judge, adding wisdom and tact to the present very able bench.

To see Wilson I. Fleming, the candidate for Prothonotory, is to at once recognize his ability and worth. He is a well equipped business man and is popular generally throughout the town Having known him here for many years we do not hesitate to ask our rural voters, even though they do not know him, to vote for him. Mr. Fleming will be a most capable and thorough prothonotory.

The name of W E Gray, Esq., is one which has been spoken very often in this county during the past few years. Though young as a lawyer and in age, yet he has become even better known than young men of his years usually are. His record is splendid and he asks you to vote for him to be District Attorney. With him in office the county's business before the criminal courts will be carefully attended to and every important interest subserved.

The balance of the ticket has on it such worthy men that not a voter can have any reason to omit them. Mr. Jesse Cleaver is a thorough surveyor and a worthy citizen. He is a Quaker in religious belief and as a man has all the virtues in which the members of the Friend's society excel. He is fitted to fill any office and asks your suffrages only to elect him to be the county surveyor.

We are equally proud to ask you to vote for Dr. J F Woods for Coroner. Recent events show that a county coroner should possess a fair knowledge of the law and be a thorough physician. All this Dr. Woods is. He is also so well and favorably known that many voters who are not Republicans will vote for Dr. Woods and he will be the next Coroner.

Republican voters, do your entire duty.

THE people of this county have an excellent opportunity of electing to the office of Prothontary a gentleman who is honest and able, upright and deserving, and perfectly unconnected with anything that savors of ring rule. It is by casting a vote for W I Fleming, the Republican candidate. As a citizen he has always been highly respected. His efforts in behalf of Republicans have always been of the strongest kind, but he never until now asked for an office except that of Chief Burgess, to which he was triumphantly elected. Do not let Republicans in any way divide their strength for this office as that would only result in permitting a Democrat to slip in. Be sure to vote a ticket having on it the name of W I Fleming for Prothonotary.

—The pay train and a freight train on the Beech Creek railroad almost collided Tuesday and a very serious wreck and perhaps loss of life would have bean the result had it not been that the freight train was signaled to stop at an unexpected place for the purpose of taking on more freight. This enabled the pay train to stop in time.

The Pittsburg Commercial is agitating the question, "Why doesn't the schoolma'm marry and settle down?" We are not aware that she doesn't—provided the right man asks her.

WE believe that Tanner's ideas of pension affairs, with possibly only a few exceptions, will continue to be the popular ones.

LUXURY IN RAILROAD TRAVEL.

The Pennsylvania's New York and Chicago Limited Express.

(Editorial in New York World, September 26th, 1889.)

In those improvements which make railroad travel a luxury the Pennsylvania Railroad Company has always been a pioneer. The handsome finish and comfort of its ordinary cars almost render the old drawing-room car superfluous. Probably that is the reason the corporation has added new accommodations and attractions to its palace car system such as has never before been dreamed of in the philosophy of the rail. Bath-rooms have been added to the sleeping-cars, with female attendants for lady passengers. A drawing-room car, handsomely fitted with rockers and other easy chairs, has been placed in the rear of the sleepers, in which persons taking births can ride while their beds are being prepared. Barber-shops are provided for men, and arrangements have been made to receive stock quotations on the day trains. So a traveler can now have as many conveniences and luxuries on a Pennsylvania train as he can obtain in his own home or hotel.

Death of Homer Stover.

The many friends of the young man whose name is contained in the above title will be surprised and grieved to learn of his death which occurred at his home in Unionville at 9 o'clock on Monday night, of typhoid fever. He had for several years worked for Mr. W T Twitmire in this place. After the flood he was at work in Johnstown. Then he spent two or three weeks at work here. Becoming ill, he went to his home in Unionville and died at the time above stated. He was 21 years old and would have cast his first vote this fall had he lived. He was an excellent young man in every respect and his death is the cause of very sincere regret. The funeral will be held on Wednesday afternoon at 1 o'clock.

—In a certain school district in Clearfield county, not a hundred miles from Philipsburg, the teacher is a spruce young gentleman who is pretty badly struck on himself. His inordinate vanity and top lofty demeanor excited the contempt of the young lady pupils of his school and one day last week when he undertook to correct one of them, seven of the biggest girls took hold of him and carried him out of the school house, in spite of his frantic resistance. He kicked and struggled, but it was no use. The sturdy young country damsels were too many for the young Adonis and set him outside and then retreated into the school house and barricaded the doors and windows so effectually that the luckless pedagogue had to appeal to the authorities who came and quelled the rebellion.—Tyrone Herald.

—When the Presbyterians obtain money enough for the purpose they expect to make extensive repairs to their church. That the repairs will come before the organ seems certain. To make the church as beautiful as they want it to be will require a large sum of money, but they are collecting it pretty rapidly just now, all their enterprises in the way of festivals, concerts, etc., being successful. After the repairs to the church are completed a large pipe organ will follow. Just which will take place first—the dedication of the new Lutheran church or the reopening of the Presbyterian church—we cannot positively state. But to both events we hope to receive a free ticket.

—The boys of our town may be a little surprised to know that there is a severe penalty imposed upon persons who thoughtlessly, maliciously or willfully disfigure buildings, porches or fences in whatever manner. The habit indulged by many boys and young men of marking the front of a house, porch or fence with chalk or lead pencil scratching them with knives or sticks, disfiguring the neatness of a painted one by daubing on other colored paints than the original, are practices that deserves severe punishment, for which there is a special law, whereby a fine of not more than one hundred dollars or imprisonment, or both can be imposed.

—Someone is complaining to us because cigars are sold in Bellefonte on Sunday. There is certainly no more excuse for selling a cigar than for selling anything else. Besides, it is against the law and no good citizen desires to be a law breaker. There is a way of enforcing all laws, for if there is no way it is a hundred times better not to have the laws on the statute books. There are gentlemen elected at regular periods whose business it is to enforce all laws and if they do not enforce them they violate their own solemn oaths. Now, if it is true that laws are violated in this manner see that the violations cease or the offenders are punished.

—We have no desire to run the Lock Haven Normal School. Our highest ambition is to persuade Dr. Elden to retain first class teachers, and did not suppose there was any of the lack of congeniality such as the Daily Democrat hints at. Tell us about it, Mr. Democrat; who was not congenial and what was the matter?

—We hope that the Electric Light Company of Bellefonte will keep its wires in proper condition, as we do not wish to have any of the occurrences such as are happening in New York City now—death by contact with the electric wire. New York is now much excited over the condition of things and may compell all the electric light wires to be laid underground.

Acute rheumatism is an inflammation of the joints, marked by pain, heat and redness. With these symptoms apply Salvation Oil, the great pain-cure at once. Price 25 cents a bottle.

Nothing tries the patience of a man more than to listen to a hacking cough, which he knows could easily be cured with Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup.

The Secretaries' Conference and Association Convention.

NEW CASTLE, PA., Oct. 10, 1889.

Dear Bailey: I thought I would write to you and let you know something about our convention. Our secretaries conference, held at Sharpsburg, was a success and the impression created there will bring rich results upon the Association, as steps have already been taken towards the purchase of the site upon which the building now stands.

After the conference adjourned the secretaries were taken in hand by Mr. Kennedy, the President of the Sharpsburg Association, who is also the manager of the Isabella Furnaces, which are the largest and most successful furnaces in the State. Through Mr. Kennedy's kindness a special car was placed at our convenience, in which we were able to make a tour of the various iron plants in and around Sharpsburg and Etna. After the tour of inspection was over our car was drawn into an old building which was formerly used for the building of cars, where, to the utter astonishment of the delegates, a midnight lunch was spread upon a rudely constructed table. The lunch included coffee, sandwiches and fruit and I can say that we certainly did relish it. A vote of thanks was then and there unanimously tendered to Mr. Kennedy for the generous hospitality he had shown toward the delegates.

Our convention opened to-day in this place. It is conceded to be one of the largest conventions ever held by our Association. The State Report was read this evening by Mr. McCauley, chairman of the State Commitee. In the report were embodied some very interesting facts connected with the work. Also it has been shown that great activity has characterized the work of the State Committee. Mr. Sankey has charge of the singing and there was melody in every voice as they sung the inspired hymn No. 5.

Yours truly,

G. W. REES.

Catarrh Can't be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATION, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you have to take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucus surface. Hall's Catarrh Cure is no quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucus surface. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials free. F. J. CHENEY & CO., Prop's, Toledo, O.

—The meeting of the Board of Directors of the Y M C A on Thursday evening was a successful one. The proposed gymnasium building will cost $450. Fifty young men have already consented to become members of the Athletic club at a membership fee of $3 per year. As soon as one hundred names are received at the same rate the building will be erected. The $175 made by the Star course of lectures last year will be used in equipping the gymnasium. We hope that the proceeds of the Star course this year will be devoted to a similarly excellent object.

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla 100 Doses One Dollar

The Chief Reason for the great success of Hood's Sarsaparilla is found in the article itself. It is merit that wins, and the fact that Hood's Sarsaparilla actually accomplishes what is claimed for it, is what has given to this medicine a popularity and sale greater than that of any other sarsaparilla or blood purifier before the public.

Merit Wins

Hood's Sarsaparilla cures Scrofula, Salt Rheum and all Humors, Dyspepsia, Sick Headache, Biliousness, overcomes That Tired Feeling, creates an Appetite, strengthens the Nerves, builds up the Whole System.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is sold by all druggists. $1; six for $5. Prepared by C. I. Hood & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass.

SINGULAR DEATH.

A Little Girl Strangles to Death while Eating Peanuts.

On Sunday morning, Lucy, the two-year old daughter of Mr. John Corman, who lives in the Southern part of town, on Quaker Hill, was eating peanuts. One of the kernels of the nut lodged in her throat and she could not move it in any direction. Physicians were called, Dr. E S Dorworth being the first to attend the child. Afterwards Drs. Seibert and VanTries were called. An operation was not attempted as it was believed that the child could not endure it. The little girl died at 5 o'clock in the afternoon. An examination was made after death and showed that the one-half of the double kernel and part of the other half had lodged in the windpipe just below the larynx. The little girl was short of stature and very fleshy. The funeral took place Tuesday.

Poisoned With Malaria.

Mr. S. D. Price, a native of this State, but now a prominent and influential citizen of Dallas, Texas, writes under date of April 12, 1889: "About three years ago I was living in a malarial district of Georgia, and while there frightful sores broke out all over my body. The poison in my blood was so bad that it ruined my health and prostrated me. I was at length so reduced in health, and apparently incurable after taking large quantities of different medicines prescribed by my physicians, that they, as a last resort, advised me to go to Hot Springs, as it was the only chance of recovery left, and in this they expressed their serious doubts that I would derive any benefit from the trip. I went to Hot Springs, and while there took a thorough course of medicine under the physicians, which seemed to benefit, but did not cure me, for in one month after my return the malady reappeared. I immediately began taking S. S. S., which made me permanently well—well from 1886 until now."

Skin Eruption Cured.

One of my customers, a highly respected and influential citizen, but who is now absent from the city, has used Swift's Specific with excellent result. He says it cured him of a skin eruption that he had been tormented with for thirty years, and had resisted the curative qualities of many other medicines.

Home from New Castle.

Mr. G. Wash Rees, who represented the Bellefonte Y. M. C. A. at the State Convention in New Castle, came home on Monday evening. He was delighted with the convention. Among those of whom he speaks in particularly enthusiastic praise and who he believes is to do a great work in the Association is the new State Secretary, Mr. Hurlburt. And he says this was the sentiment of all the delegates. The services of the convention were wonderfully impressive, especially that in the Methodist church on Sunday afternoon when there were at least 1500 young men present. At that meeting the State Secretary showed his remarkable familiarity with and pointed use of the Scriptures. New Castle's new Association building is very handsome and well suited for the purpose.

Daughters, Wives and Mothers

Physicians heartily endorse the use of Speer's celebrated Port Grape Wine for the use of debilitated females. It is not an intoxicant, and is absolutely pure, being made from grapes grown at Mr. Speer's Mount Prospect Vineyards, Passaic, N. J., from vines imported from the port wine districts of Portugal.

Druggists sell it.

Retiring from Business.

Mr. Adolf Loeb, who has been in the mercantile business in this place for a very long time, announces to-day that he is about to retire and place his business in the hands of his brother, Mr. Simon Loeb, who is a most careful and competent merchant. This is for the purpose of closing out the business, his continued ill health rendering it necessary. It is of course with regret that Mr. Loeb retires from business, but it is the best thing he can do to enable him to recover his health. We hope this change will produce the desired result and that he will soon improve until he is almost as strong and well as he used to be. Read the announcement he makes in our advertising columns to-day.

Are you weak and weary, overworked and tired? Hood's Sarsaparilla is just the medicine to purify your blood and give you strength.

The Irish National Concert Company.

This company of six artists will open the Star Course of entertainments with a concert on Tuesday evening, November 26. There are six artists with the company, including Miss Charlotte Hanlon, soprano; Miss Selina Hall-Gallagher, contralto; Mr. Wm. Foxon, tenor; Mr. Wilfred Canliffe, basso; Mrs. Emilie Grey, harpist; and Mr. John O'Rorke, conductor. The Trowbridge Chronicle says: "The first song, "Golden Day," was sung with singular purity by Miss Hall-Gallagher, who possesses a fine contralto voice. She again held her audience spell-bound in the beautiful song, "Three Fishers went Sailing," and was recalled amidst great applause, when she gave "The Lost Chord," another gem which pleased well."

—When the autumn tints the foliage
Turning leaves from green to gold,
Then 'tis time the stoop to vacate
Or she'll catch her death of cold;
And you'll hear her softly murmur
When your time you have outstaid;
"Now, good-bye, you must be going,
Good-night, darlig, cub agaid."

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH.

Under a spreading chestnut tree
The village blacksmith stands,
And in a brimming basin he
Would wash his brawny hands;
But something else than water clean
His sooty palm demands.

Week in, week out, from morn till night,
He might have rubbed, I trow,
Had I not given him a cake
Of IVORY SOAP, when, lo!
Full soon those honest hands of his
Were spotless as the snow.

And when the soap escaped his grasp,
With wonder he did note
That on the water's surface dark
The cleansing bar did float,
As swims upon a turbid lake
A pearl white fairy boat.

"Thanks, thanks," said he, "my worthy friend,
For this which thou hast brought;
No village blacksmith should forget
The facts this Ivory Soap has taught
For hands like mine it is the best
That can be found or bought."

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

A Valuable Bible.

Very often the more costly a Bible is the less it is read. It is kept for show or as a relic. The working, every-day Bible does not figure largely in dollars and cents, but in its practical value is beyond all price. From a money standpoint Rome boasts of the most valuable book in the world. It is a Hebrew Bible, preserved in the Vatican at Rome, and remarkable for its size, weighing over 325 pounds and requiring usually three men to carry it. In 1512 "a syndicate of Venician Jews" offered Pope Julius its weight in gold for it, or $125,000, but though needing the money greatly he refused it. According to the present standard value of gold as compared with that period the book ought to be worth, upon the terms of those old Jews, about $375,000, and it is doubtful if Rome would sell it for any such amount. Yet notwithstanding the wonderful money value set upon it it is of little practical service. It is too cumbersome for use, and is preserved as a memento of the past as a liberal treasure.

A TELEGRAM from St. Louis says that there will be opposition to the re-election of Senator Ingalls, of Kansas in 1891, alleging, among other reasons, that his attempt to straddle the prohibition question has made him unpopular. It would be singular if a man like Mr. Ingalls had no enemies, but the statement that he has attempted to straddle the prohibition question will not be credited by those who remember the article which he recently contributed to the Forum. Indeed, it would be impossible for a man of the make-up of Mr. Ingalls to straddle any question. He is peculiarly frank in the expression of opinion on all questions of public interest.

WAVES OF MELODY.

NOTES OF SWEETEST MUSIC FILL THE COURT HOUSE.

The Concert Proves a Grand Triumph of Talent and Art.

THE AUDIENCE BECOME SO ENTHUSIASTIC AS TO RISE TO THEIR FEET AND FLING BOUQUETS.

In all respects the most successful concert ever given in Bellefonte was that of Friday evening. The audience was not only immense but intensely appreciative and before it closed became so enthusiastic as to demonstrate it by rising en masse to their feet. The first chorus, "Dancing O'er the Waves," by the choir must have touched a responsive chord. It had in it many parts of surpassing sweetness. The choir was composed of Misses. Speer, Aikens and Bayard and Messrs. Keplinger, Voris and Weaver. This and the other selection, "Twilight Bell," by the choir, were equally excellent and were received with thunders of applause. The instrumental duet, "La Chaise Infernal," by Misses Effie Hamilton and Emma Aikens, evinces the complete mastery of the instrument which those young ladies have acquired under their superior instruction at Birmingham.

With splendid effect Mr. Robert Voris gave that fine bass solo, "The Ivy Clad Ruin," and was called back, giving what we think a much sweeter song—"One Day." Prof. Johnson C Bane, the far famed guitarist, gave three performances on the guitar, the second time being accompanied by Miss Aikens on the piano. His variations of "Home Sweet Home" proved most pleasing to the audience. Mrs. Dr. Gearhart, of Tyrone, appeared twice in vocal selections. Her voice ranges between a rich contralto and a soprano. It is cultivated in the highest degree and every note was perfect and well rounded. So artistic was her rendering of that difficult classic composition, "Staccato Polka," that the audience recalled her.

Miss Emma J Aikens' voice, as heard in a fine solo, shows the excellent results of talent and training. It is sweet in quality, too, and the rendering of 'M'ode, ah M'ode,' shows Miss Emma to be a vocalist of superior culture. Part I ended with a comic quartette, "Professor at Home," in which Misses Speer, and Bayard and Messrs. Bassett and Bayard were the singers. It, too, was encored.

If Evan Blanchard, Esq., ever received a more earnest and hearty greeting from an audience than he did Friday evening, then he he is a man to be envied just as much as the moral law will permit. He sang "The Day is Done" magnificently and was compelled to respond to an encore.

As was expected Mr. Voris and Dr. Keplinger created a furore of excitement by their wonderful singing of "The Swallow's Farewell." The audience were enraptured and called for them again, the modest Doctor refusing, however, to utter another note. The concluding number was the old folks chorus "Auld Sang Syne." There were about thirty old folks, wearing more or less complete costumes of ye olden time. As they sang it the audience became quite excited and showered the singers with flowers. None of the grand new music of the evening sounded better than did this old song.

Most acceptable variety in the programme were the two recitations of W. I. Swoope, Esq. Not many people had heard him and so they were surprised to hear him recite with all the art and cleverness which characterizes the best of elocutionists. His voice is fine and perfectly controlled, his enunciation expressive and distinct. In "King Robert of Sicily" the anger and indignation of the King were strongly expressed. In "Sergeant Buzfuz's Oration" all the arts of the trained elocutionist were employed in illustrating the characters introduced in the speech. It was a masterly effort in humorous portrayal and must have caused Dickens greater joy if from his present abode he could hear this famous speech so well interpreted.

Miss Belle Weaver presided at the piano most of the time. Mrs. Witter, of Tyrone, not only accompanied several of the songs on that instrument, but also rendered a piano duet with Miss Aikens It is safe to say that Mrs. Witter's equal as a pianist has seldom been heard in Bellefonte.

Miss Effie Hamilton, a young lady from Birmingham, contributed gracefullly to the entertainment in an instrumental duet.

The committee who had this perfect concert in charge were Mrs. Aikens and Mrs. J. C. Weaver. That they have acquitted themselves wonderfully well is shown in the results, which exceeded the highest anticipations. They were gallantly assisted by their better—beg pardon—other halves, and Mr. Aikens acted as master of ceremonies Friday evening.

Here are our earnest congratulations to one and all on the result achieved.

—Mr. Wesley Lambert, whose foot and limb were seriously affected as a result of an in-growing toe nail, was, we regret to say, compelled to undergo the the amputation of the affected limb. We have not heard from him since the operation, but hope that he endured it well and will now rapidly recover.

Sunday School Workers.

A writer from Williamsport to the Altoona Tribune gives the following in reference to the State Sabbath school Convention then in session in Williamsport:

The state Sunday school convention met on Wednesday morning in the Second Presbyterian church. The first half hour was spent in devotional service, conducted by Rev. M Ganoe, of the Mulberry Street Methodist Episcopal church of this city. The enrollment showed that there were about one hundred delegates present.

The chairman of the executive committee reported as follows. The work this year has been somewhat varied, owing to the fact that we have not had a statistical secretary. Of the sixty-seven counties of the state thirty-eight have active organizations, several others are nominally organized. This is a deplorable condition, since Pennsylvania is the mother of the international work. Pennsylvania should be the Keystone state in this work. It is necessary for us to have a live man to engage in the work, giving his whole time in organizing the state. Reports were heard from several of the district presidents, showing progress.

William McDermot, of Conshohocken, treasurer, reported as follows:

Received from counties during the past year, $351; other sources, $151.53, making a total of $502.53. Paid out, $287.21 leaving a balance on hand of $215.32

A Dig in the Ribs.

If on the right side and lower part of the diaphraghm. though playfully meant and delivered, is calculated to evoke profanity from a chappy whose liver is out of order. When that region is sore and congested, pokes seem fiendish. Look at a man's countenance ere you prod him under the ribs. If his skin and eyeballs have a sallow tinge, you may infer also that his tongue is furred, his breath apt to be sour, that he has pains not only beneath his ribs, but also under the right shoulderblade. Also, that his bowels are irregular and his digestion impaired. Instead of making a jocose demonstration on his ribs, recommend him to take, and steadily persist in taking, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the finest anti-billious and aiterative medicine extant. Incomparable is it, also, for dyspepsia, rheumatism, nervousness, kidney trouble, and fever and ague.

Death of Mrs. Russell, Mother of Dr. E A Russell, of Unionville.

The venerable Mrs. Russell, wife of Abel M Russell, died at her home in Unionville last Saturday. Her maiden name was Amanda M White. She was born on the 18th of December, 1813 at Whitestown, Adams county, and was married to Abel M Russell May 6, 1836. She had almost competed her 76th year and leaves her husband in his 82d year. Her son. Dr. Ed A Russell, also survives her, and three daughters, viz., Mrs. Allegra J Thompson, Mrs. Henshey, wife of Rev. B B Henshey, pastor of the Lewisburg Baptist church, and Mrs. Margaret B Griest, wife of T E Griest. All these surviving relatives deeply mourn their loss. The funeral was held at Unionville on Monday morning at 10 o'clock from the residence of T E Griest, and the interment was made in the cemetery above town.

Granger Picnics.

Here is a statement which is denied by Mr. Thomas, of the Williams Grove picnic. We give it for what it is worth and will let our readers judge of its correctness:

It is said in the Lebanon dispatch that Dr. T. A. Corryell, of Harrisburg, secretary of the granger association, in company with other representatives of the same association, visited Robert H Coleman September 25 and effected a twenty years' lease of grounds at Mount Gretna. It is reported that the picnics of the association, which have heretofore been held at Williams' Grove, will hereafter be held at Mount Gretna. A stock company will be formed with a liberal capital, several buildings will bo erected the largest of which will be 50 by 500 feet, and it has been decided to conduct the picnic on a much grander scale than ever before.

Potatoes.

The Sullivan Review gives the following advice, which will apply here as well as elsewhere;

"If you have any potatoes to sell do not wait for $1 a bushell. They are retailing at 80 cents in Dushore now and have been 90. Before Thanksgiving they can be bought for sixty. The short crop is only local—there are sections where potatoes are a drug in the market, and they will be shipped in and sold considerably under the present market price."

THE W. C. T. U.

The Annual Session Closed in Philadelphia Friday Night.

PHILADELPHIA, October 11.—This was the third and last day of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union. At the morning session Mrs. Oliver Holcomb, of Bucks county, was elected vice president-at-large. Mrs. E M Watson called up her amendment to article 2 of the constitution, making it read:

"The object of this organization shall be to interest and invite the women in this state in non-sectarian and non-partisan temperance work, for the reformation of the intemperate, the education of public sentiment in favor of total abstinence and prohibition of the traffic in all alcoholic beverages, for the promotion of social purity, the suppression of vice and crime and the education of the masses in regard to the duties and responsibilities of good citizenship."

A heated discussion ensued, resulting in the tabling of the amendment by a vote of 254 to 85, an overwhelming victory for those opposed to adherents of non-partisanship.

The committee on resolutions presented its report. The document declared in favor of Sabbath observance laws, against the use of cigarettes by minors, recommended the formation of Bands of Mercy, favored an equal moral code for men and women, opposed lewdness in literature, called the attention of the members to the necessity of modesty in children's dress, recommended the founding of homes for inebriates, urged the necessity of scientific instruction in the public schools, favored the establishment of the proposed library for Hindoo women, expressed sympathy for women sufferers of Johnstown, thanked the press generally for favorable mention of the convention, and George W Childs especially for full reports given.

The selection of a place in which to hold the next convention was left to the executive committee. The convention was brought to a close to-night with an address by Miss Frances Willard, president of the National Woman's Christian Temperance union.

FOR OVER THREE MONTHS my son suffered night and day with rheumatism; so much so that he was unable to feed himself. Your Sulphur Bitters cured him, and I am truly thankful to say they are an honest medicine—MRS W H CARLETON, wife of Deacon Carleton, First Baptist church, Winchester, Mass.

Steel Ties for Railroad Tracks.

A Pittsburgh dispatch says; Carnegie Phipps & Co., have begun the manufacture of steel railroad ties and an immense hydraulic press turns steal plates into ties at the rate of one a minute. The ties now being manufactured are for the Chicago & Western Indiana Railroad and are to be put down in Chicago, and it is expected will lead to a great demand. It is believed that the question of a perfect track, capable of the highest speed, with absolute safety, has been solved by this invention. Steel ties have been used in Europe and India for some years, but the designs in use there, besides being more costly, are also unsuitable for American roads, owing to the insufficiency of their fastenings.

The ties now being manufactured are of an American pattern and have a fastening that is acknowledged by railroad experts to be the most perfect ever invented, practically converting the rails and ties into solid structure that cannot be moved from its bed. At the same time a wooden cushion is introduced in such a manner that there will be less vibration and noise than there now is with the ordinary wooden tie. With this tie, spreading of the rails will be unheard of, and, as it possesses the merit of great economy with its other qualities, it seems likely to be largely brought into use.

The actual saving in the use of these ties is estimated at over $300 per mile per year, with the advantage of a much better track. "The Standard Metal Tie and Construction Company," of New York, owns the patents and is carrying on the business.

To Our Neighbors.

The question is often asked by our neighbors, "Where I wonder, can I get a pure stimulant?" It is a fact that there is scarcely a roof under which you cannot find a stimulant of some kind. Old people prolong life with it; sick people have it to sustain life; well people may and do use it to make life more enjoyable, but where will we advise our readers to buy it? We learn from the most reliable source that Max Klein is one of the most popular and respected citizens of this country. At his home his word is taken unhesitatingly. To him we can cheerfully recommend our readers for anything in the liquor line. He authorizes us to say that for $1.00 you can buy one quart of six year old rye, or six quarts for $5.00. His "Silver Age" at $1.50 per quart is without doubt the best whiskey know. Send for price list and complete catalogue. His address is, Max Klein, 82 Federal St., Allegheny, Pa.

The Excitement Not Over,

The rush on the druggists still continues and daily scores of people call for a bottle of Kemp's Balsam for the Throat and Lungs for the cure of Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, Asthma and Consumption. —Prof. Johnson C. Bane, who performed on the guitar on Friday evening in the Court House, at once attracted the attention of all the musicians in the audience. The Professor is certainly in high favor in musical circles in this part of Pennsylvania, and will be in demand at all the concerts to be given.

The Verdict Unanimous.

W. D. Sult, Druggist, Bippus, Ind., testifies: "I can recommend Electric Bitters as the very best remedy. Every bottle sold has given relief in every case. One man took six bottles, and was cured of Rheumatism for 10 years standing." Abraham Hare, druggist, Bellville, Ohio, affirms: "The best selling medicine I have ever handled in my 20 years' experience, is Electric Bitters." Thousands of others have added their testimony, so that the verdict is unanimous that Electric Bitters do cure all disease of the Liver, Kidneys or Blood. Only a half dollar a bottle at W. C. The Law of Inquests.

NINE INQUISITIONS HELD BY JUSTICES OF THE PEACE WITHOUT SUFFICIENT CAUSE.

JUDGE FURST STATES THE LAW ON THE SUBJECT—EVERY JUSTICE OF THE PEACE SHOULD READ IT.

This week President Judge A. O. Furst gave an elaborate and important opinion concerning the subject of holding inquests on the bodies of dead persons. The opinion was in answer to applications for approval of certain inquests which had been held by justices of the peace. We quote as follows:

In the matter of certain inquests held by the justices of the peace in the absence of the coroner. Sur exceptions by the commissioners to the approval thereof:

The Court: Nine inquests have been returned by certain justices and we are asked to approve them and direct the county to pay the costs. It is proper to state the facts as they appear in the record of the several cases, viz:

Charles Pfouts, Ellen Pfouts, Eva Pfouts and Bruce Pfouts were four children who were in their father's house, a short distance east of Coburn, and on the night of the 1st of June last, during the flood, the house was swept away and they were drowned in the flood. This fact was notorious in the neighborhood.

A. W. Ralston committed suicide in the Borough of Philipsburg on the 28th of November, 1888. He was a man afflicted with melancholy, and was known to have made a prior attempt to take his own life.

Charles Compi was bathing in Hays run on the 18th day of August, 1889, about 10 o'clock a. m. and was accidentally drowned.

Patrick McGee came to his death from drunkenness by the excessive use of liquor and that no marks of violence could be found on his person.

Frank Eckley came to his death by attempting to get upon a moving train of cars on the Bald Eagle Valley Railroad, near Milesburg. He missed his hold and was dragged a short distance. That the railroad employes were in no fault—a case of gross negligence on his part.

L. E. Heisler came to his death accidentally, while helping to load a boiler at the Bellefonte Boiler Works, the rope having slipped, and the deceased having been caught between the boiler and the skid.

It thus appears that four children were destroyed in the flood and all the others were accidental deaths, except Ralston who committed suicide. He was known to be despondent and had once before attempted to take his own life. Was there any legal reason or occasion for holding an inquest in any one of these cases?

From the many cases returned to this court, it seems to us there is an ignorance of the law which should govern the coroner, and in his absence the justice of the peace in holding an inquisition super visum corporis.

In County of Lancaster V. Meshler, 5 Outerbridge 626, the Supreme Court says: It is the duty of a coroner to hold an inquest super visum corporis, where he has cause to suspect the deceased was feloniously destroyed.

Or when his death was caused by violence—Commonwealth v. Harman, 4 Barr 269.

Where the cause of death is not doubtful and there is no reason to suspect that it implicated anyone, an inquest should not be held.

Marvin Shaft inquest, 3 County Court, Rep. 10.

It is the duty of coroners to hold an inquest only where there are suspicious circumstances surrounding the death, indicating that it was caused feloniously or in a violent manner. Where death results from natural causes, or by a stroke of lightning, a fit of epilepsy, or apoplexy or a fall induced by drunkenness there should be no inquest.

In Re-Coroner's Inquest, 1 County Courts Reports 14.

The coroner should hold an inquest whenever he has cause to suspect that the deceased was feloniously destroyed, but not where death results from disease, or natural cause or by some accident.

In Re-body of Wm. Jones, 1 County Court Rep. 19.

The act of May 27, 1841, section 15, Purdon's Digest 1006, paragraph 158, provides that in all cases where by law the coroner of any county is required to hold an inquest over a dead body, it shall be lawful for a justice of the peace of the proper county to hold the same, where there is no lawfully appointed coroner, or he is absent from the county, unable to attend, or his office is held more than ten miles distant from the place where the death occurred or the body is found.

This act further provides that no fees or costs shall be allowed or paid said justice or inquest, until the proceedings are submitted to the court of Quarter Sessions of the proper county, and said court shall adjudge that there was reasonable cause for holding said inquest and approve the same.

Independantly of this act a justice has no right to hold an inquisition super visum corporis.

Ex-parte Schultz, 6 Wharton 270. The jurisdiction of the justice is purely statutory and must appear on the face of the proceedings. Reitlinger's case, 2 Kulp 127.

When a coroner, or a justice in his absence, is called upon to view a dead body, he should make some reasonable inquiry into the circumstances of the death, before proceedings to summon a jury and hold the inquest. This preliminary inquiry would have in all these cases developed the fact that there were either witnesses present, or that death was produced by natural causes. Where the surrounding facts do not show violence, and there is no reason for supposing a felonious destruction of the person there is no necessity for an inquest. But where the contrary appears or the death is enveloped in mystery, it is a proper case for an inquest. Death by suicide may or may not, according to the attending circumstances, be good ground for an inquisition. Violence is present in such cases. If, however, the facts are known which clearly show the case to be suicide, it is improper to summon an inquest. The inquest would simply declare what was previously known.

If an employer desires an inquest, in case of an accidental death of an employe, in order to establish the fact that he was not responsible therefor, such inquest is held in his interest, and not for the public good; he should be willing to pay the expense incident to the same. It is very clear that it should not be held at the expense of the county.

We have thus stated the principles which should govern in the holding of an inquest, for the benefit of all persons who may be interested therein, and if the officers of the county observe the same in the performance of their respective duties, fewer inquests will be held; and when so held, the presumption will arise that the officer holding the same had reasonable cause for so doing.

Upon an examination of these cases we cannot discover that there was reasonable cause for holding any one of the inquests returned to this Court, and hence for this reason the law makes it our absolute duty to refuse the approval of the same.

Approval therefore in each case is refused.

A. O. FURST, P. J.

Again in Bellefonte.

Mr. B. M. Campbell arrived in Bellefonte on Thursday morning. On Wednesday he was in Altoona and we find the following in reference to him in the Altoona Times:

Mr. B. M. Campbell, Gallitzin's pride, and one of the State's crack baritone soloists, arrived home on Monday evening from a two weeks' trip through the Western States. Mr. Campbell is yet a young man and only took hold of music about five years ago, but in that time he has played in almost every city in the United States and his services are in such a demand that he receives letters daily to go all over the country. He has now several fine prizes for his artistic performances on the baritone and on his recent trip he played solos for the great Sixteenth Regiment band of Defiance, Ohio, for two weeks in the following cities: St. Louis, East Saginaw, Chicago, Rockford, Elgin and St. Paul. He has just accepted an engagement with the Eighteenth Regiment band, of Wellsburg, W. Va., to play with them for one week.

—News has been received of the death of ex State Senator John G. Hall of Ridgway, Elk county, which occurred in Liverpool, England. He was a native of this county. He was born in Hublersburg, on April 3, 1839. His primary education was gained in the common schools, also attending Bellefonte and Lewisburg academies. His legal studies were with Hon. Wm. A. Wallace, at Clearfield. After being admitted to practice in 1861, he removed to Ridgway, Elk county. Politically he has been prominent, representing Clearfield, Elk and Forest counties in the House of Representatives in 1870–1; in 1872—3; elected to the Senate November 1878, and re-elected in November, 1882.

The Clothes Pin Town.

The pretty little town of Kane, on the summit of the Allegheny Mountains, is becoming famous for the manufacture of clothes pins. There are already three factories engaged in turning out these useful articles, and it is asserted by a McKean county exchange that in a few weeks twenty miles of clothes pins will be manufactured daily. At this rate, it would seem, that in a few months enough pins will be manufactured to supply every household in the State with abundance. But the wastage is so great that there is a constant demand for new pins. Kane is entitled to the name of Clothes Pin Town.

—Rev. A. A. Bird, of Houtzdale, and Miss Mildred Verenice Taylor, of Edinboro, Erie county, will be married Wednesday, October 16. Rev. Bird is a son of L. The prospective bride is a daughter of I. N. Taylor.

ALL THE GRAND ARMY POSTS OF CENTRAL PENNSYLVANIA REPRESENTED AT SUNBURY.

An Imposing and Beautiful Parade and Rousing Camp Fire.

THE EVENT AN UNPARALLELED SUCCESS.

Sunbury is an exquisite little city with large inviting public squares and broad thoroughfares. In the central square is a stately monument erected to the memory of departed soldiers. It is forty feet in height and is extremely graceful. Therefore, not only beauty but patriotism seems to fill the air, which gave a most pleasant welcome to the large excursion of Centre county soldiers and their friends, who arrived in Northumberland county's capital at a reasonably early hour. Every post in this county was represented by one or more members and some by many. In the ordinary course of events, we presume, Major Harvey Benner or General Curtin would have been elected chairman of this delegation, but they waived their rights and Capt. Theo. Christ was chosen. In the age of service as commander of G A R Posts he is the oldest in the county. He certainly filled the position very creditably.

Bellefonte's Band was present and all Bellefonters and citizens of the county could refer to it with pride during the day and were very happy when they heard its fine serenades in the evening. It numbered twenty pieces and had especially prepared for the event under the direction of Prof. Scull. Its music was soft and artistic—not making such a loud blare as some of the bands did, but rendering music with more delicacy and skill. It had no superior among all the many bands there, and Mr. Al. Garman deserves the highest praise for what he did to make it a credit to the town.

What could have been more harmonious and tasteful than the decorations made by the citizens of Sunbury? The large square, already referred to, is surrounded by a fence and every post of this structure had its decoration of banners and all the gates were hung heavily with bunting. The business places and residences throughout the city were beautifully decorated and the parade made its way beneath numerous elegant arches.

The line of parade was formed about 1 o'clock p. m. Its formation was somewhat different from the ordinary parades and was a unique and welcome innovation. The several parts of the parade were kept well detached and the line of march was so well chosen that the fine spectacle was visible in every part of the town, and indeed as one detachment paraded along one street it could witness a separate detachment moving along another street. This was very gratifying. Crowds of people thronged every thoroughfare, the weather making it extremely pleasant to be out doors. Governor Beaver with his staff preceded the line of march. Reno post was very noticeable. It was accompanied by its guard wearing the chapeau and the Post itself under arms. The Mt. Camel Post was accompanied by a very fine band, though its music was somewhat harsher than that of the Bellefonte band. The Mahanoy City band also attracted notice for its strength and excellence. Jersey Shore was represented by its fine post and among those present we saw our former citizen, Mr. David Kennedy. Shamokin Post was present with all its members and a band. Others were the posts and musical organizations of Milton and Northumberland. It was 4 o'clock when the parade was finished. There were 2000 veterans in line, besides a host of bands and drum corps and the people are unanimous in the opinion that it was Sunbury's greatest event.

A camp fire was held in the Court House in the evening. The building is one of the finest halls of justice in the State, and on Wednesday evening it contained at least 2500 people. Particular attractions were addresses by Gov. Beaver and Gen. Thomas Stewart, both of which delighted and inspired the audience.

At a business meeting in the afternoon Mahanoy City was chosen as the place for holding next year's Grand Army celebration for Central Pennsylvania.

The committee of arrangements, composed of Messrs. R C Irvin, Thomas Donachy and A V Smith, and also the music committee—John Andersen, Amos Mullen, Daniel Everhart and George B Brandon—are very grateful to the people who contributed so liberally and also to the Pennsylvania railroad for special favors.

The special train reached Bellefonte at 2 o'clock a. m.

Six at One Shot.

Squirrels are awfully plenty in the Western part of the State, or the newspaper correspondents are unusually lively this season. One of them writes that an Altoona man killed six black squirrels with one shot the other day. His great haul was in consequence of his forgetting to remove the ramrod; which plunged through the sides of the squirrels as they sat in a row on a barn and an excellent position for the marksman. The sextette dropped to the ground, dangling to the rod, to his "utter amazement." Some old time hunters will doubtless turn in their grave when they hear of this little squirrel story.

Mr. Geo. W Rodgers' [Valuable] Invention.

Bellefonte has a fine inventive mind in that of Mr. George W Rodgers. He has for many years been applying his ingenuity to the preparation of things which are useful and beneficial with excellent success. His gauge for boilers has been examined by competent mechanics and engineers and is pronounced by them to be the finest of the kind ever used. His gauges are already used in many places as just the right kind of a gauge for hydrants and other similar purposes for which gauges are desirable.

He has just received letters patent for his "try-gage for steam boilers," which is his gauge as immediately applied to locomotives. We understand that Mr. Rodgers will at once begin the manufacture of the gauges of all kinds included in his invention. The work will be done here. He will be assisted by a friend, financially, in the manufacture of the gauges. As the prospects are that these gauges will substitute all others in general use, we must congratulate Mr. Rodgers on the prospective reward to his genius and wish him the best success imaginable.

—The Lock Haven Express says that the steam saw mill owned by John A. Burrell, situated in the east end of Nittany Valley, was destroyed by fire shortly before midnight Tuesday. Upwards of 300,000 feet of white pine sawed lumber were also burned. The total loss will be about $4,000. There was a small insurance on the lumber, but none on the mill. The origin of the fire is unknown, but Mr. Burrell thinks it was the work of an incendiary. The mill was in operation on Tuesday as it has been for some time. The lumber was owned by J. B. Furst.

THE POSTMASTER,

Winchester, Mass., says: I am personally with Mr. and Mrs. Carleton, and was astonished at the remarkable effects of your Sulphur Bitters in curing their son, and its large sale is undoubtedly due to the fact that it is an honest medicine. I know of many others who have been cured by its use, and I do not think too much can be said in its praise.

Yours truly, GEO. P. BROWN, P. M.

—When Captain Jones, the general superintendent of the great Carnegie works at Braddock, was buried last week, the men begged for a day's leave in order to attend the funeral, which was granted at the cost of $50,000 to the company. The cost was owing to the chilling of the rolls, the banking up of the furnaces, and the cooling of the tremendous machinery kept at a red heat day and night, together with the loss of the product for the time consumed.

—A man of quiet, pious mien
I chanced to pass one day
As a banana peel unseen
Upon the pavement lay:
Unconsciously he trod on it, and
The pavement smote his head;
And oh! he was a wicked man,

CONSECRATED.

THE LARGEST AND HANDSOMEST CHURCH EDIFICE IN BELLEFONTE.

A Credit to the Rector and Congregation of St. John's Catholic Church.

ELABORATE AND BEAUTIFUL DEDICATORY SERVICES ON SUNDAY.

It was on Sunday, August 24, 1884, when the corner stone of the new edifice of St. John's Roman Catholic church was laid with suitable services. At that time the occasion was honored with the presence of Rt. Rev. Bishop Shanahan, of Harrisburg; Rev. James Igeo, of Renovo; Rev. Thomas Gibbons, of Diocese of St. Paul; Rev. Father O'Neil, of Lykens; Rev. Father McIlheny, of Snow Shoe; and Rev. P. McArdle, the pastor of the church. More than five years have passed and it is interesting to compare that occasion with the present. The venerable Bishop, who then officiated so eloquently, has entered the church triumphant and his successor, Rt. Rev. Bishop McGovern, was present on Sunday, taking part in the service in the morning and preaching in the evening.

There was an eager desire to attend this first service and the street and grounds outside were filled with people waiting for the doors to open. And when the doors were opened the people poured in as they do into St. Peter's at Rome.

The church outside is noble and stately, complete up to the towers, but without the crowning spires which are to tell its mission. It is massive and durable in its design and beautiful stone. It is even now very handsome within, but, as was remarked by the Bishop, it is as yet but a frame, as when completed it will be gorgeous with ornamentation.

The interior of this church is 118 feet deep. Twenty-five feet of this is devoted to the sanctuary; the auditorium occupies 75 feet and the vestibule 18. A few steps lead from the vestibule into the auditorium. It is all columns and fluted arches, there being three sets of these canopied arches, extending the entire length of the church and ascending to the highest part of the roof in the centre.

BEAUTIFUL WINDOWS.

We believe that all the windows in the church are memorials. They were made by the Pennsylvania Stained Glass Works, of Dukes & Isaac, and were put in under the direction of Mr. George Berry. The large tripple windows in front were presented by the Brockerhoff family in memory of the late Henry Brockerhoff and of Mr. and Mrs. Mullen, father and mother of Mrs. Brockerhoff. The four tower windows were the gifts of the Rosary Society—Rev. T J Rafferty, Rev. P McArdle and a number of young men and women. The small windows under the tower were presented by H Miller, Thomas Caldwell and J Pacini, in memory of S Pacini, and the Sunday school; gable windows, gifts of the Sayler family in memory of H Sayler and the James Clark family. The twelve large aisle windows are properly inscribed as memorials as follows: John Brownell John Rolly, Rev. W Burke, Rev. J Gormly, Mrs. W D Kelly in memory of Theo. Kelly; Mrs. Alice Beezer, A Kohler and J Seight, in memory of U Kohler; Mr. and Mrs. Ceader, Crotty family, in memory of father and mother; P Gross, in memory of Mr. Gross; Hazel family in memory of Mr. Hazel; Garber; family in memory of Joseph Garber; P Collins, in memory of deceased members of Collins and Schoales families.

On Sunday the spectacle within the chancel approached even to splendor, the royally rich vestments of the Bishop and priests being unparalleled in grandeur. The choir were in the gallery over the entrance and numbered between thirty and forty in strength, among whom were many persons holding other religious views, but who contributed their talents to the success of this occasion. The young men's orchestra also swelled the chorus and the baton for instrumentalists and singers was wielded by Mr. A Lukenbach. Singers from a distance were Miss Schell and Mr. Young, of Tyrone, and Prof. Byers, of Ebensburg. Miss Alice Nolan, of this place, assumed a very important part of the solo singing. To our untrained ear it all seemed to be rendered in a perfect style.

The prests of the church who took part in the service on Sunday morning, together with the places they filled in ceremony are as follows:

Rt. Rev. Thomas McGovern, the Bishop.

Very Rev. Joseph Koch, V. G.,—Assistant Priest.

Very Rev. E. Garvey, V. F., of Williamsport, and Very Rev. M. G. Powers, V. F., of Lock Haven,—Deacons of Honor.

Very Rev. Joseph A. Boll, V. F., of Gettysburg,—Deacon.

Rev. J. Farren, of Tyrone,—Celebrant.

Rev. J. J. Gormley, of Renovo—Subdeacon.

Rev. W. J. Burk, of Bonneauville,—Master of Ceremonies.

Rev. Nevin Fisher, Professor in Overbrooke Seminary, Philadephia, who delivered the sermon.

Rev. Father J. Cohl, of Snow Shoe.

Rev. P. McArdle, the rector of the church.

Miss Theresa Hibler, of Milesburg, was the organist and filled that difficult position in a very capable manner. Mr. Young's orchestra was superb and the critical musicians present were lavish in praise of its execution and the musical talent which it is developing.

Before entering the church the clergymen marched around the building dedicating the exterior. They then proceeded up the centre aisle into the sanctuary. Later in the service they proceeded all the distance through the side aisles of the church, chanting the dedicatory services.

THE CHURCH A UNIT.

The Epistle and Gospel for the day were read by Rev. Father Fisher, who also delivered the sermon. His text was from St. Matthew 16: 17, 18, "Blessed art thou, Simon Bai-jona; thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it."

He first spoke of the church building as a memorial to the successful labors of others. To-day, he said, marks an epoch in its history. There is not a pebble or a splinter from turret to base that does not memoralize an act of devotion.

The message to the Centurion, of which he had read, is also yours. This church building does not stand alone. It is one of tens of thousands ranging in value from St. Peters at Rome to the homely forest chapel. Here daily is to be offered the sacrifice of the mass, a service which is engaged in by 300,000,000 people. All represent one doctrine and acknowledge the authority of one Head, the Lord Jesus.

The history of the church is not a riddle, but becomes plain. The church has expanded like a single grain of mustard seed into a great tree. This unity is the perpetual sign of wonderful love. Prophets have predicted its destruction, but it has manifested such increase of strength as to astonish its enemies. It is because the Divine Feeder made her so and keeps her so. This is reasonable. Man is a social creature, and is bound by tender ties to his fellowman.

Did God give to any one personal authority? For no other than St. Peter is it claimed. Peter is always mentioned first. He was even allowed to fall to overcome his presumptious self-esteem. Peter preached the first sermon. He ordered that a new apostle be chosen to take the place of the fallen Judas. Three thousand were converted at one time by Peter's teaching. Our Lord gives the entire church into his care under the teaching of the Shepherd and the lambs, when he said "Feed my lambs."

St. Peter represents the principle of unity, including in his person the entire church.

By the "gates of hell" the speaker said, is meant the kingdom and province of Satan—all that opposes the church Societies are organized for purposes extending beyond the lives of the organizers; so the Divine Founder of the church meant it to be perpetual. The sermon was delevered very forcibly. Father Fisher is an excellent speaker.

Bishop McGovern also spoke, describing the singular pleasure which the dedication of this building afforded him, as he knew the history of this parish during the past quarter of a century. He extolled the zeal and love which were so evident. The building of a church, he said, is difficult. It takes other qualities than those which fit a man to shine in a drawing room. It is disinterested, so far as the priest is concerned, for no son of his can minister at the altar and no daughter of his worship in the church.

God will repay a hundred fold for all that is given to beautify His sanctuary.

The History of Centre County gives the following

HISTORY OF THE PARISH.

Public services by a Catholic Priest were first held in Bellefonte in 1824 From that year to 1828, Rev. Father. Hayden, of Bedford, paid occasional visits to Bellefonte, and held services in a house on High street, at one time the residence of Wm. Welch. Bellefonte continued to be a mission point in charge of the Bedford priest until 1828. In that year the congregation had reached a strength that warranted the creation of a parish and the building of a house of worship. In the year last named, Rev. Father O'Rielly came to Bellefonte, and projected as well as directed the building of the present church edifice on Bishop street. The church was finished and consecrated Sunday, August 14, 1831.

At the time of the organization of Bellefonte parish it included also Lock Haven, Jersey Shore, Howard and Potter. Subsequently Hecla Furnace, Washington Furnace, Philipsburg and Snow Shoe were added. Since the establishment of St. John's church thirty-six priests have rendered services therein. Of these priests, Rev. Lewis Fink became Bishop of Leavenworth, Kansas, and Rev. Father Bernard, prior of the Benedictine Order of Newark, N. J. Rev. A. J. O'Brian took charge of St. John's in July, 1875, and in November, 1880, was succeeded by the present pastor. Rev. Patrick McArdle entered the priesthood at Lewistown, in 1875, where for five years he had charge of the Church of the Sacred Heart.

During the ceremonies of Sunday the officiating priests referred frequently to the services of Rev. P McArdle in erecting this beautiful edifice. The entire building stands to-day an enduring monument to his indefatigable labors. In everything the dovoted priest undertakes he shows consecration and zeal. He has marshalled his forces and expended his resources with the greatest tact. Though years have elapsed since he first had it in view he to-day sees his hopes realized in the most costly church building in town in which his growing congregation can worship, and we congratulate him and his people on the possession of an edifice which is a credit to the town and an honor to the cause of religion.

Two Men Killed.

The Newport correspondent of the Harrisburg Telegraph, under date of October 14, writes that paper as follows: A most horrible accident, which resulted in the death of two men, occurred about three and a half miles east of this place last Saturday afternoon on the Pennsylvania railroad, W H Evans' gang of track laborers were at work on track No. 2 (there are four tracks at this place), which is for eastbound passenger traffic, when a freight going east was passing along track No. 1. Without warning an extra passenger engine, hauling a "dead" engine, came thundering around the curve on track No. 2, and ran into the men, hauling Elias B Shull and A J Van Camp from the track, Mr. Evans barely escaped by a hand's breadth. Mr. Van Camp was killed outright, having both legs and one arm broken, his hip crushed and head badly cut. He was dead when picked up.

Shull was still breathing, and he was put on a hand car and brought to this place, but he died shortly after being placed in the station.

The New Gymnasium,

Mr. Wash Rees is securing names so rapidly for the gymnasium association that we almost believe he will have the requisite one hundred by Friday evening when the present Board of Directors holds its last meeting. We have reason to believe that the Board will proceed with the erection of the building at once.

The structure will be as large as the limits of the lot will allow, about 78x32 feet. Part of the gymnasium will be a running track for pedestrianism. The outfit of apparatus will be furnished by the Narragansett Company and will be very complete. Mr. Wilder, who is the instructor at New Castle, has promised to come to Bellefonte when the gymnasium is completed and give instructions for at least a week.

—What will be known as the fourth annual convention of the American Federation of Labor is to be held in Wells Memorial Hall, Boston, on December 10. It is a confederation of laborers who will consider their own interests, particularly that of the eight hour work day. The basis of representation is as follows: "From National or International Unions for less than four thousand members, one delegate; four thousand or more, two delegates; eight thousand or more three delegates; sixteen thousand or more, four delegates, and so on; and from each local or district trade organization or federated body, not connected with, or having a National or International head, officiated with this federation, one delegate."

—The new Odd Fellows building in Tyrone was dedicated on Tuesday afternoon, twenty members of the Bellefonte Lodge being in attendance and marching in the parade. The Herald, in speaking of the building, says the architect was Robert Cole, of Bellefonte. It is 34x80 feet in size and is three stories high with a capacious basement beneath. The structure is erected on a substantial stone and cement foundation, and is constructed of brick with trimmings of Ohio buff sandstone. The style of architecture is a combination of the Moorish and Gothic. A beautiful effect is given by the front which is very tastefully conceived. The cost of the building is between $9,000 and $10,000.

Accident to a Fireman.

M C. Cherry, who is fireman on one of the freight engines on the Bald Eagle Valley railroad, met with an unfortunate accident on Tuesday morning at Milesburg. He was standing on his engine near the tender. His position was such that his head was extended out quite a distance from the engine and he was looking along the track. A freight car moving along the track struck him on the back of the head, knocking him from the engine. Quite a long, deep gash was cut in his head, but the injury is not considered serious. He was taken to his home in Tyrone.

—Mr. James Ardell, of Beaver Mills, still has in his possession an interesting collection of burglars' tools. He don't make use of them, but keeps them as a memento of the time when his safe was burglarized about six years ago. They were left behind by the burglars.

—Send some money to Brooklyn to help Dr. Talmage rebuild his tabernacle.

She also visited in Lancaster, Pa. In New Jersey she was at Rosenhane, Vineland and Trenton and in the Empire state her sojourning place was in Brooklyn. Her visit was exceedingly pleasant.

Mrs. George W. Jackson and Mrs. John Lane, with a party of others from Bellefonte, spent last week in Washington City, D. C., and say that they never enjoyed a week more completely than they did the one in the City of Magnificent Distances. This was largely due to the courtesy of friends, among whom they very pleasantly remember Capt. Weaver and his agreeable wife, who accompanied them to all places of interest in the beautiful city. Of course, they attended all the receptions given to the Knights Templar and saw perhaps more of Washington than lady visitors generally do in so short a time.

Miss Mattie Rothrock is visiting friends in Lock Haven.

Miss Annie Evans, of DuBois, and Miss Mary Whittaker of Curwensville, made a flying visit to Bellefonte, the guests of Miss Jennie Lukenbach. They departed for their homes on the early train this morning.

—There was a dedication ceremony in Philipsburg on Tuesday. The Reliance Fire Company dedicated their handsome new hall did it by a parade and the opening of a fair and festival. The boys have been at work for weeks gathering up articles either handsome or useful which amount in value to several hundred dollars. The parade in the afternoon was made up of the fire companies of Houtzdale, Clearfield and Curwensville, with three home companies—the Hope, Reliance and Reliance Jrs. The visiting firemen were banquetted in the old Barber building, where a splendid collation was served. The parade was the best of the kind ever seen in Philipsburg.

Big Lumber Fire.

There was a big lumber fire on Saturday morning at Horton City, near Brockport, Elk county. The fire started at one o'clock, having caught from a yard engine. The Renovo, DuBois and Bradford fire departments were present and extinguished the flames in solid lumber piles, within 200 feet of the mill. Eight or ten houses and a locomotive were burned, besides the yard and tracks. The Emery Brothers, of Williamsport, lost 10,500,000 feet of manufactured hemlock, which was, however, fully insured. Total insurance on yard $118,500; total loss outside of insurance $25,000.

Two of Them Hurt.

By a fall of rocks at Summerville's Mines on Tuesday two men were hurt, neither of them seriously. They were James Culbey and Thomas Hulberty. Culbey's injuries were the worst, including his back and ankle, both of which were sprained. Hulberty escaped with only a badly skinned nose. We are glad that Hulberty's injuries were no worse, especially because he is to be married next week, and a skinned nose will hardly be sufficient to defer the ceremony.

The Grand Result.

Mr. Aikens telephoned us this morning that the net proceeds from the concert on Friday evening are $108. This is indeed a result upon which the managers of the affair are to be congratulated. We know of no better way to make money than by such concerts and there was never a concert given in Bellefonte which was so generally successful. The admission price was low and all agree that they received far more than their money's worth. Now for another.

Dropped Dead.

One of those sudden deaths which are so frequent of late occurred at Peale on Saturday. Herbert Smith, of that place, was engaged at work as usual, when, without warning, he fell to the ground and when help arrived the spark of life had fled. Heart disease is pronounced to be the cause. The occurrence is peculiarly sad as Smith was married and leaves his wife and four children.

—Young ladies have new inventions with which to hook the gentlemen. They have contrivances attached to their umbrellas with which they hook on to gentlemen's hats, and the gentleman is sure to follow his hat when he becomes aware that it is going. They are pretty successful and we know of a gentleman who had to struggle pretty violently the other day to keep his hat on his head and to keep his heart in the right place.

—The meat house belonging to Mr. Theodore Deschner, in the extreme southeastern part of the town, caught fire Tuesday night between 11 and 12 o'clock and was entirely burned. The light was seen from town and the alarm whistle was sounded. A great many people started to the fire, but returned when they were told that it was so far away and that it was only a smoke house.

—An attorney left his office Monday morning for a short time and visitors at the office during his absence found this note on the table: "At the house putting up a stove. If any one wants to see me for any other purpose than to endorse a note come to the house. W.
October 14, 1889, 10 a. m."
